US postpones immigrant plan

By Nelson A. King

A day before hundreds of thousands of illegal Caribbean and immigrants were to begin applying for work permits and legal protection, the United States has jettisoned sweeping executive actions on immigration indefinitely.

White House officials said President Barack Obama decided to postpone the plan in order to comply with a federal judge's last-minute order Monday night in halting the programs.

In his 123-page ruling, Judge Andrew S. Hanen said Obama administration officials had provided "perplexing" misrepresentations of the scope and impact of the president's actions.

He said the new programs were "a substantive change to immigration policy," and that they were, "in effect, a new law."

The judge dismissed the argument that those changes were a proper exercise of prosecutorial discretion, ruling that the administration had engaged in "a complete abdication" of enforcement.

Hanen said the U.S. Department of Homeland Security cannot "enact a program whereby it not only ignores the dictates of Congress, but actively acts to thwart them."

According to the New York Times, the judge's ruling was a "significant setback for the president, who had asserted broad authority to take executive

New gov't in St. Kitts & Nevis

By Bert Wilkinson

The first of three general elections which are expected to produce new governments in the Caribbean Community this year was held in St. Kitts on Monday with the opposition Team Unity Party led by disgruntled former members of the outgoing administration winning a clear majority of the parliamentary seats and unseating a controversial cabinet that had run the country for the past 20 years.

Prime Minister Denzil Douglas who until Monday had been the most senior and longest serving leader in CARICOM conceded defeat to incoming Prime Minister Timothy Harris who had been his one-time foreign affairs and finance minister but who grew increasingly unhappy about the level of corruption on the twin-island Federation with St. Kitts, a controversial dollars for citizenship scheme and the general lack of accountability in governmental affairs.

Team Unity walked away with seven of the 11 seats that were up for grabs, giving it an easy parliamentary majority to pass new or amend existing legislation.

In all five general elections are scheduled in the regional bloc this year with St. Kitts-Nevis being first out of the bloc. Guyana's which is scheduled for May 11 is likely to be next unless Ralph Gonsalves in St. Vincent or Kamla Persad-Bissessar in Trinidad decides to name a date before May 11. Suriname has already scheduled this for late May, almost five years to the date of the previous election.

Like Gonsalves, President Desi Bouterse is likely to win a second five-year term. Polls show that Guyana and Trinidad will likely have new administrations.

Harris and Team Unity cabinet ministers are expected to be sworn in to office late this week. The holding of island

Clarke honors African-Americans

By Nelson A. King

As part of African-American History Month celebrations, Brooklyn Congresswoman Yvette D. Clarke has introduced a resolution in the US House of Representatives, with several of her congressional colleagues, honoring the “enormous contributions” of African-Americans in the Armed Forces of the United States.

“From the Revolutionary War and the Civil War to World War II and the War on Terrorism, African-American women and men have been dedicated members of our armed forces and decorated for their excellence in battle,” said Clarke, Democratic representative for the 9th Congressional District in Brooklyn.

“Yet, in the not-so-distant past, when many of these soldiers returned from their military service, they faced discrimination back home, here in the United States, the nation to which they swore their allegiance,” she added.

Clarke noted that, after World War I, the 369th Infantry, known as the “Harlem Hellfighters,” was awarded the Croix de Guerre, the highest military honor in France.

However, because they were African-American, their heroism was not acknowledged here at home, Clarke said.

Before breaking the “color barrier” in Major League Baseball, the congresswoman said the legendary Jackie Robinson was court martialed by the Army for refusing to sit in the back of the bus while he was stationed in Fort Hood, TX.

When Medgar and Charles Evers returned from World War II, both veterans were not allowed to register to vote, she also noted.

“The contradiction between the battle for freedom in Europe and Asia and the legacy of segregation

The East Flatbush, Brooklyn group Action, Performance, Commitment (APC) Community Services, Inc. on Sunday honored seven members of the community during its annual Black History Month-Valentine's Day Celebration.

The gala event, despite the extremely frigid weather, took place at Grace Christian Center Ball Room on DeWitt Avenue in East New York.

Grenada's Ambassador of Humanitarian and Diaspora Affairs Derrick James was among the honorees, which included four registered nurses.

Besides James, who was the keynote speaker, the other honorees, all Guyanese-born, were: RNs Dawn Caesar, Conrad Forsythe, Sherry Cockfield Lawrence and Caroline Howell; Dr. Giddel Thom; and Dr. Franklyn Rodney, a Seventh-day Adventist Church pastor, who worships at St. Alban's Mission of Seventh-Day Adventists.

James was Counsel General of Grenada in New York from October 2008 to December 2012, and was appointed ambassador of Humanitarian and Diaspora Affairs by the new Keith Mitchell administration last year.

For 19 years, James was employed by IKON Office Solutions in New York, where he was the recipient of numerous citations and awards for excellence – leading up to a managerial position before he exited the company to assume his role as counsel general.

Prior to holding the position as counsel general, James had established himself, over the years, as a community-minded individual.

Dr. Giddel Thom, who received his medical training at University of Montemorelos in Mexico, did his internship at St. George's Hospital in Grenada.

Dr. Thom, a researcher who has published many papers in the area of cancer in children, has conducted many workshops and training programs.

He has also participated in many medical missions, the most recent being the APC Medical Mission to his homeland and St. Vincent and the Grenadines. Thom currently serves as a pediatrician at New Mexico Medical Clinic.

Fly Jamaica starts non-stop Guyana service

By Tangerine Clarke

Guyanese Jamaican carrier, Fly Jamaica Airways will commence its non-stop flights from John F. Kennedy Airport to Cheddi Jagan Airport beginning on Saturday, Feb. 21.

The airline management, which waited more than two years to be approved by the U.S. Department of Transportation for the direct route, made the announcement recently to overjoyed Guyanese passengers, who were forced to travel three hours to Jamaica, for a connecting flight to New York.

The carrier, operated by Guyanese-born Captain Ronald Reece and Manager Roxanne Reece, celebrated its second anniversary last month with a celebration in Queens to thank loyal customers, travel agents and special guests.

Fly Jamaica, which now has routes to Canada, plans to expand to other countries around the world.

In a recent interview with Caribbean Life, Captain Reece had indicated that he was hopeful that the application would be approved in the very near future.

The flights will depart from JFK's Terminal 1 at 9:00 a.m. and arrive in Georgetown at 3:30 p.m. The airline is offering a special one-way fare costing $199.00 to celebrate Guyana's 45th Anniversary and Mashramani costume

The airline will allow passengers two pieces of luggage at 50 pounds each and a carry-on weighing less than 22 pounds.

Reece, who also operates Wings Aviation, a local charter service in Guyana, recently unveiled its newly acquired Boeing 767 wide-bodied aircraft that accommodates 245 passengers.

The fleet, said Captain Reece, is not subsidized by any government or country and has not been receiving any subsidies like some other airlines that ply the Caribbean. The planes are owned and operated by the group.

Caribbean

The Organization of Eastern Caribbean States (OECS) Commission is now calling for the removal of roaming fees within its nine-member grouping.

Roaming fees are additional charges attached to mobile phone calls made or received beyond a specified geographical jurisdiction.

"We're not talking about the fancy marketing glitz of something called roaming or anything like that. We want the removal of roaming," said OECS Director Dr. Didacus Jules.

The countries of the Organization of Eastern Caribbean States (OECS) form a single economic union, but citizens still pay roaming fees between Antigua and Barbuda, Dominica, Grenada, St. Lucia, St. Vincent and the Grenadines, St. Kitts-Nevis, Montserrat, Anguilla and the British Virgin Islands.

Antigua

Eleven convicts who were serving time for various "minor" offences at Her Majesty's Prison on Antigua and Barbuda were recently freed.

This was disclosed by Minister for Public Safety, Stedroy "Cutie" Benjamin.

The 11 comprised one woman, Wendy Tavanier and 10 men.

The passage in parliament of the Criminal Procedure Amendment Act 2014, in November, paved the way for the convicts to be released.

Under the Act, those with convictions dating back to 2003 and onward would have the time spent on remand awaiting committal, trial and/or sentencing, discounted from the jail sentence imposed by the court.

Those released were serving time of offences ranging from larceny to possession of marijuana and use of threatening language.

Bahamas

The Court of Appeal in the Bahamas has once again dealt a blow to attempts by legislators to define which offenses are eligible for death.

In its recent ruling in the case of Anthony Jerome Clarke, the Court of Appeal said that a contract killing does not necessarily fall in the category of the worst of the worst.

Last year, the case of Mario Flowers, the court ruled that the murder of a policeman acting in the execution of his duty was not a death eligible offense.

The former government in 2011 passed legislation that designated the murder of a policeman and contract killings as death eligible offenses.

Murders committed during a felony were also defined as death eligible.

Clarke killed Aleus Tilus in September 2011 after luring him to an establishment in Gambia under the guise of having a sandwich with him.

Clarke was paid $5,000 by Tilus's former employers, according to evidence. Tilus was shot three times.

The court upheld Clarke's conviction and he is waiting resentencing.

Flowers was resentenced to 29 years in prison for the murder of Constable Ramos Williams.

Barbados

The Barbados government says it is hopeful that the island's economy will rebound by 2016.

A government statement reporting on a meeting between Prime Minister Fren-duel Stuart and former President of the Republic Of Chile, Sebastien Pinera in Bridgetown said that economic growth will allow Barbadians who made the necessary sacrifices to reap the benefits.

"During the discussion on the global economic crisis and its impact on Barbados, Pinera said Chile was following what was happening here and the country, seemed to be doing well," the statement said. Prime Minister Stuart said his administration is working on getting its fiscal deficit down to manageable levels, pointing to a 19-month stabilization program put in place.

But he said it has now been extended by one year so as to ensure that the gains the country had been making were not reversed.

Stuart was quoted in the statement as saying that the island was beginning to feel the effects of the falling oil prices.

He said that the Barbadian economy was expected to grow by two percent this year with the Central Bank reporting that fiscal adjustment measures have reduced the deficit by two percent. The Central Bank reporting that fiscal adjustment measures have reduced the deficit by nearly one percent of gross domestic product (GDP) so far this fiscal year.

Cayman Island

Cayman Islands Premier Alden McLaughlin said recently that while overall unemployment appears to be tapering off, particularly among the Caymanian labor force, the number of work permits held by non-Caymanians has begun to grow.

According to McLaughlin, total unemployment in Cayman is expected to fall from 6.3 percent in the mid 2013 to 5.9 percent in mid-2015 and eventually shrink to 4.9 percent in mid-2018.

Meanwhile, the total number of work permits held in Cayman as of January 2015, including government contracts and workers awaiting word on permanent residence applications, was 21,403. That's up eight percent from January 2014 and up five percent.

"All data indicate that unemployment is falling and is projected to continue to fall over the next few years as projects come on stream and as we get more people into jobs, He said at the recent annual State of the Nation address adding "an increase in work permits is a clear indication that the economy is rebounding, that employers are hiring".

Haiti

Protestors clash with police last week over high fuel costs that left several people injured.

The clashes follow the decision by the police to remove roadblocks in the capital set up by the anti-government protestors.

Earlier, newly installed Prime Minister Evans Paul had said the government would move to assure the safety of law abiding citizens after the protestors had warned people to remain off the streets.

Paul said the government cannot lower the price of gas. It's not that we don't want to, it's because we are not able to," he added.

Recently the government announced a reduction in fuel prices, reducing gaso-

St. Kitts and Nevis Prime Minister Dr. Denzil Douglas, whose St. Kitts and Nevis Labor Party (SKNLP) had ruled the twin-island federation for four consecutive five-year terms, was dethroned in Monday's general elections.

Team Unity, an amalgam of three opposition parties, headed by Douglas's former Foreign Affairs Minister Dr. Timothy Harris, 51, won the elections with seven of 11 Parliamentary seats, according to Supervisor of Elections, Wingrove George.

George, who had suspended the vote count on Monday night amid uneasiness in the State, made the announcement on Tuesday.

Another T&T minister under investigation

By Azad Ali

The Trinidad and Tobago Police are investigating an allegation against another Cabinet minister in connection with the witness tampering scandal made by fired National Security Minister Gary Griffith in the defamation case brought by former Attorney General Anand Ramlogan against Opposition Leader Dr. Keith Rowley.

Ramlogan, who was also sent packing by Prime Minister Kamla Persad-Bissessar recently, is under a police probe.

Griffith has named Trade and Industry Minister Vasant Bharath as the minister who allegedly tried to influence him not to speak out in the witness tampering matter involving Ramlogan and Police Complaints Authority (PCA) Director David West.

Griffith said the move to silence him took place at the Diplomatic Centre, St. Clair, Port of Spain on Jan. 29.

The allegation levelled against Ramlogan is that six days before West was appointed PCA director, he (Ramlogan) telephoned him and asked that he withdraw his witness statement in a libel case relating to the failed extradition involving Section 34 applicants Steve Ferguson and Ishwar Galbaransingh (two United National Congress (UNC) financiers) in exchange for him being selected for the job.

Ramlogan has denied the allegation, which is now subject to a police probe.

Police sources say that the former National Security Minister has reportedly implicated two other Cabinet ministers in the chain of events in the alleged witness tampering matter.

IMMIGRATION GUIDE

REMOVING IMMIGRATION NIGHTMARES

There are solutions to problems immigrants frequently experience. Among the problems and solutions are the following:

1. GETTING MARRIED TO A US CITIZEN OR GREEN CARD HOLDER AND BEING ABUSED OR ABANDONED BY THE SPOUSE:

If you are married to a US Citizen or green card holder who is abusive or has abandoned you, you may be entitled to a work permit and green card even if you are divorced or have a criminal record. You do not need your spouse to file for you or sponsor you or attend the interview with you. This relief is also applicable to child (including step child), fiancée and parent of US citizens or green card holder. You can also get relief if you are married to a citizen or green card holder who was already married but did not divorce before marrying you, that is, a bigamy or polygamy situation.

2. PARENTS OF US CITIZEN WANTING TO WORK AND MAINTAIN THEIR CHILDREN:

Are you a parent of a US Citizen Child or Green card holder? You may be administratively approved for a work permit to enable you to maintain your family. This is an administrative relief subject to discretion of the government officials.

3. ILLEGAL ENTRY INTO THE US:

This is a major problem but there is relief for special immigrants married to a US Citizen or green card holder or those who have US citizen children. You may still get a work permit and green card.

4. ILLEGAL REENTRY AFTER DEPORTATION:

Did you enter the US after being deported? This is a crime. There is relief for special immigrants married to a US Citizen or green card holder. Hurry to talk to us before you are arrested. You may be entitled to relief?

5. WORK PERMIT AND GREEN CARD FOR CHILDREN AND YOUNG PERSONS:

- Are you less than 21 years old?
- Are you living in the US dependent on someone other than your parent?
- Is your natural parent dead or lack viable means to take care of you?
- Do you think it is not in your best interest to return to country of birth or citizenship now?

You may be entitled to work permit and or green card whether you entered with visa or not. You may still be approved even if you entered without inspection, entered with fraudulent document or overstayed your visa or have certain criminal record.

6. CRIMINAL RECORDS: WAIVERS AND PARDONS:

If you are convicted or pled guilty to a crime in the past it can generate complexities and be a nightmare but waivers and various special actions and legal procedures are available to relieve immigrants with past criminal records.

7. REMOVING 2-YEAR CONDITIONAL GREENCARD:

Many immigrants have found it difficult to remove conditions on their 2 year green cards either because they are not able to convince the government that their marriage is genuine or because they are not getting cooperation from their spouse. We can help remove conditions on your greencard, even if your spouse is not filing with you and even if you have been denied and placed in a removal proceeding. You need not wait for 2 years if you are abused by your spouse or if your spouse died.

8. ASYLUM PROBLEMS AND DEPORTATION ORDERS:

Do you have deportation order on you that makes you a fugitive? Hurry to talk to us before you are picked up by Detention and Removal Office (DRO).

Your deportation may be suspended and get work permit & green card.

9. APPROVALS AND VISA BULLETIN PROBLEMS:

Do you have an approved petition filed by your brother or sister, parents etc and you were unable to apply for a green card because you overstayed here in US? Call us now. We might be able to assist you.

10. NOTICE TO APPEAR (NTA) IN IMMIGRATION COURT AND IMMIGRATION COURT PROCEEDINGS:

Did you receive NTA from the government or are you currently in immigration court? Consider speaking to us for a great first or second opinion and resolution of your case. You will not regret calling.

11. DO YOU NEED A WORK PERMIT, IDENTIFICATION CARD AND FOREIGN TRAVEL PERMIT?

You may be entitled.

12. CBP AND TSA PROBLEMS:

Correcting travel records- US-VISIT, ADIS Records, Enforce/Indent Records, DHSTRIP, and CLASS etc. Citizens and green card holders can remove names from CLASS

13. CITIZENSHIP AND CITIZENSHIP DELAYS OR DENIALS:

Did you apply for citizenship and you are being denied or unnecessarily delayed? Call us to enforce your rights in Federal Court.

14. WE PROCESS ALIEN WORKERS, STUDENTS, ENTREPRENEURS AND BUSINESS IMMIGRATION.

15. WE PROCESS CHANGE AND EXTENSION OF STATUS.

16. WE PROCESS ORPHAN AND ADOPTION PETITIONS.

Manning bows out from T&T politics

By Azad Ali

Former Trinidad and Tobago Prime Minister Patrick Manning has bowed out of politics after serving as a Member of Parliament (MP) for 43 years.

Manning's history-making tenure as the longest serving MP for the constituency of San Fernando East in the Southern City of T&T came to a premature end when 36-year-old attorney Randall Mitchell was named as his successor and the candidate for the 2015 general election following the screening of candidates at the People's National Movement (PNM) San Fernando East constituency last week.

The former prime minister sent a letter to Dr. Rowley indicating that if his health had improved and he is healed he can face the screening committee.

"In the foregoing context it is now clear that although there has been some improvement of my condition, my health has not improved sufficiently. I therefore bow out of politics under the circumstances. It is for this reason that I did not face the screening committee," he said.

Manning, 69, was the fourth prime minister of Trinidad and Tobago from December 1991 to 1995 and again from December 2001 to May 2006.

He was also political leader of the PNM from 1987 to 2010 when he called a snap general election and his party lost to the Kamla Persad-Bissessar led coalition People's Partnership Party (PP).

The PP won 29 seats in the 41-seat House of Representative. Manning resigned as political leader of the PNM a few days later.

But, Manning retained his San Fernando East seat, which he held for 27 years. His nemesis Dr. Keith Rowley was voted as the new PNM leader last year.

Two years ago Manning suffered a stroke and had to seek treatment in the United States.

He was leader of the opposition from 1986 to 1990 and again from 1995 to 2001.

When the PNM lost the General Election in 1986, Manning was one of three PNM candidates who retained their seats. He became leader of the opposition and within two months he was elected to the post of political leader of the PNM.

Caribbean on measles watch

By Nelson A. King

The United Nations says its health agency has called for "stepped-up" surveillance to prevent the spread of measles in the Americas, including the Caribbean.

The U.N. said on Wednesday that the recent outbreaks of measles – one of the leading causes of deaths among young children – in the United States and Brazil suggest that immunization rates in some areas have dropped below levels needed to prevent the spread of imported into the Americas.

The U.N. World Health Organization (WHO) and the Pan American Health Organization (PAHO), based in Washington, D.C., have reported that there were 147 confirmed measles cases in four countries of the Americas this year, as of Feb. 8.

"Of that total, 121 cases were in the United States, linked primarily to an outbreak that began at Disneyland in California last December," said the PAHO/WHO statement, adding that a single case in Mexico was also tied to that outbreak. Of the remaining cases, 21 were in Brazil and four were in Canada.

"Thanks to high levels of immunization, the Americas have been on track for more than a decade to be formally declared free of measles," said Dr. Cuauhtemoc Ruiz, head of PAHO/WHO's immunization program. "Maintaining high levels of vaccine coverage is key to preventing and halting outbreaks and to protect our populations from the constant threat of imported cases."

Measles had been considered eliminated from the Americas since 2002, due to the absence of endemic transmission of the disease as the result of the region's success in achieving high levels of immunization, the U.N. said.

Now, measles elimination "is facing major challenges, with several ongoing importations of measles in some countries," said PAHO/WHO in an epidemiological alert distributed Tuesday to member-countries across the region.

Team Unity Party wins elections

elections came just three days after the two main opposition parties in Guyana said that they are so determined to effect change in the country that they had formed a united coalition to oust the governing People's Party (PPP) from office after almost 23 years in office.

Like St. Kitts, leaders of A Partnership For National Unity (APNU) and the Alliance For Change (AFC) in Guyana say they can take no more of the widespread level of greed and graft of PPP ministers and top players, many of who openly flaunt the wealth they have acquired from wheeling and dealing with investors or from skimming millions from numerous local and foreign-funded projects. They want the PPP out.

They also plan to set up an investigative tribunal that could likely bring criminal charges against top officials for their years of association with the narco trade, private hit squads which executed dozens of criminal suspects and the criminalization of nearly every layer of Guyanese society.

Until the pre-election agreement was announced Saturday evening, the two parties, the AFC in particular, had vowed never to team up with APNU for fears it would have killed its election chances but the AFC said it did so in the interest of the country and at the behest of groups and individuals who think it is the surest way of ousting the PPP.

They have already given the nation a modus as to how cabinet and other positions will be shared, with APNU's Leader retired army general David Granger being the presidential candidate and journalist turned attorney Moses Nagamootoo of the AFC being the nominee for prime minister.

tive actions in the face of congressional Republicans' refusal to overhaul the immigration system."

White House officials, however, said Obama's action is "legal and proper," according to the Times.

Judge Hanen, of Federal District Court for the Southern District of Texas, in Brownsville, ruled in favor of Texas and 25 other states that had challenged the president's immigration plan.

Hanen said that the administration's programs would impose significant burdens on states, unleashing illegal immigration and straining state budgets.

He added that Washington had not followed required procedures for changing federal rules.

But President Obama vowed on Tuesday to appeal the court ruling, expressing confidence that he would prevail in the legal battle to defend his signature domestic policy achievement.

"The law is on our side, and history is on our side," he said.

White House officials said the government would continue preparing to put Obama's executive actions into effect but would not begin accepting applications from illegal workers until the legal case was settled, according to the Times.

In the interim, Obama urged Republican legislators to return to negotiations on a broader overhaul of immigration laws.

"We should not be tearing some mom away from her child when the child has been born here and that mom has been living here the last 10 years minding her own business and being an important part of the community," he said.

But White House officials and some legal scholars noted that another federal judge had dismissed a different challenge to the president's executive actions, and they predicted that Judge Hanen's decision was likely to be suspended by the appeals court, according to the Times.

"Federal supremacy with respect to immigration matters makes the states a kind of interloper in disputes between the president and Congress," said Laurence H. Tribe, a professor of constitutional law at Harvard. "They don't have any right of their own."

Immigrant advocates, at the same time, derided Hanen's ruling, saying he had failed to consider the benefits to national security and the economy of having millions of unauthorized immigrants begin taking background checks and paying taxes.

Advocates said they would continue to prepare immigrants to file applications, assuming that the programs go into effect soon.

"Detractors of these programs may try to paint this as a fight with the president, but make no mistake: Attempts to dismantle these programs are attacks on American families," said Janet Murguía, president of NCLR, also known as the National Council of La Raza, the country's largest Latino organization.

Don't take Black History Month for granted

By Ron Isaac

Black History Month is almost over. Why do we celebrate it anyway? Because we must. We owe it to ourselves, regardless of where we fit among the Census Bureau's categories. Awareness of the contributions of Black men and women to the betterment of civilization should be embedded in every educated person who is sensitive to the world around us. And those who are not as well.

Blacks in America and abroad are and have been far greater donors in all areas of human achievement that has been credited in textbooks, films, newspaper...

People should not need to be reminded that Blacks in America and abroad are and have been far greater donors in all areas of human achievement that has been credited in textbooks, films, newspaper archives and family conversations over dinner tables. They are represented, though largely unacknowledged, in the pantheon of luminaries in every field.

Yet every February, our school bulletin boards and television mini-spots always feature the same superstars. We should study and admire them, but we should also expand the scope of eminence and spread the word about these dignitaries whose notability extends beyond sports, entertainment, community organizing and civil rights/social justice activism. There must be none of the restrictions on sectors of praise as there have historically been to access to society's playing fields.

The general absence of a more panoramic view of Black excellence may subconsciously imply doubt of its legitimacy. That's why it's important that Black History Month not be merely a reference on a wall calendar but an internally-felt commitment to analysis.

Celebration of Black History Month shouldn't be begrudging or half-hearted. What we glean from it is part of the common inheritance of all communities and omitting it from our collective ancestral memories would amount to a pathetic assertion of supremacy on our part.

So let's look into ourselves during Black History Month and neither take the commemoration for granted nor view it as separate and apart from the creativity of the rest of humanity. The exemplars of Black culture must be fully integrated, not merely at the lunch counters, but in our shared hearts.

People power, the solution to climate inaction

By Rob McCreath

BRISBANE, Feb. 10, 2015 (IPS) - Nothing is more important to farmers like me than the weather. It affects the growth and quality of our crops and livestock, and has a major impact on global food supply.

The world's weather is being messed up by global warming, mainly caused by the burning of fossil fuels, which releases heat-trapping gases into the atmosphere.

If your bank lends money to coal, oil and gas projects, then take your business to one that doesn't. It will put a smile on your face.

Every national science organisation in the developed world agrees that global warming is real and caused by human activities. That's good enough for me.

If we keep on burning coal, oil and gas at 'business as usual' levels, our grandchildren will inhabit a planet some 5 degrees Celsius hotter by the end of the century - rendering large parts of it uninhabitable, including many currently densely populated areas, which will be under water due to melting glaciers and ice caps.

The impacts on farming in Australia (and everywhere else) of such a rise in temperature would be very severe indeed.

To avoid such a bleak future, we simply must stop putting greenhouse gases into the atmosphere. If our politicians had any common sense, they would change quickly to renewable energy, but sadly they are captives of the fossil fuel industry that funds their re-election campaigns.

Just look at the Nationals, who in spite of claiming to represent farmers, this month declared donations of 30,000 dollars from oil & gas company Santos, 25,000 from coal miner Peabody, and 50,000 dollars from prominent climate change denier and coal & oil company director Ian Plimer.

So, for the sake of future generations, we have to make this change happen ourselves, and the best way to do this is to disrupt the business model of companies trying to make money from fossil fuels by pulling the financial rug out from underneath them.

It's called divestment, which is simply the opposite of investment. Here's how it works. If you've got shares in fossil fuel companies, then sell them and invest in something that won't wreck the planet.

If your super fund invests in fossil fuels, then transfer your money to a fund that doesn't. If your bank lends money to coal, oil and gas projects, then take your business to one that doesn't. It will put a smile on your face.

The global movement to divest from fossil fuels is gaining momentum, and the more people that take part, the better it works. Share prices (just like wheat and cattle prices) are set by supply and demand, so as more people sell, the price falls.

When a company's share price falls far enough, it finds it more difficult to borrow money, with which to fund its next coal mine. Take oil and gas company Santos, for example. Due mainly to the recent plunge in oil prices, in the past six months its share price has dropped by almost 50 percent.

As a result, the company has announced plans to cut back on expenditure and reduce its operations.

On the flip side, the more money that flows into companies involved in renewable energy, energy efficiency and green technology, the faster they will grow and the sooner we can put a lid on runaway climate change.

A brave new world awaits. Let's divest together and change the future!

An utterly un-presidential 2016 contender

The findings of a Rutgers-Eagleton survey on New Jersey Gov. Chris Christie released last week showed the governor's favorability numbers taking a nosedive, 42 percent of NJ voters approving and 52 percent disapproving of his performance in office. A far cry, this, from those salad days when, back in 2013, he was seeking a second term and, he would later admit, was looking to "run up the score" against his opponent as he and his retinue tried to bolster what they saw as presidential credentials in the man. True, the Bridgegate scandal that erupted in early 2014 wasn't exactly what Christie needed while trying to enhance his presidential prospects. But, as we've previously said here, with or without Bridgegate, realizing those grand ambitions was always going to be more challenging than Christie and his cheering section imagined.

It's amazing that one quality in a guy could at once be regarded as cute and saleable by sycophants and recognized by a more objective gaze as a deal killer in any quest for widespread public affection. After he first became governor, a major piece in what the Christie camp thought to be their route to bigger things was a calculated marketing of their guy via his famous town hall meetings across the state. That the much touted videos of these "performances" invariably included boorish and/or insulting Christie putdowns of common or garden variety Jerseyites evidently contributed, in the view of the Christie promoters, to how special the governor was. In the real world we watched, dumbstruck, these recurring poor-taste displays. And we knew full well that the idea of offering this unseemly stuff as prelude to a presidency could only come from wackos.

The Rutgers poll reported that 20 percent of respondents cited Christie's personality as an important factor framing their negative rating for the governor. Respondents were quoted as having used terms like "arrogance," "rudeness" and "abrasive" in forming their judgments. We don't know whether either in the earlier elected position of county legislator or later in the role of U.S. Attorney for New Jersey, to which George W. Bush appointed him, Christie demonstrated the churlishness that would be so front and center as governor. Perhaps by the time of his run for governor in 2010, anti-Jon Corzine (the incumbent) sentiment was so deep-seated with the electorate, it trumped any off-color vibe Christie emitted. Whatever, Christie certainly seems to have found his assumption of gubernatorial office a dandy time, if not before, to unleash the full personality package.

It bordered on surreal. Christie in full flight, via those town hall videos, might give us a "Shut up and sit down" leveled at some poor slob wishing to engage the governor about some matter. We might hear him tell a questioner that where the governor's children went to school was none of her business. We might see the guy get hot under the collar or on his high horse when someone attempted to raise an issue, maybe already making news, about which any resident of the state was perfectly entitled to inquire. Or we might see Christie, in town halls and elsewhere, warming to what seemed one of his favorite things – spewing remorseless hostility toward, of all people, the state's educators.

It's difficult to come up with rationale for why masterminds of the Christie marketing operation didn't see the derailment potency of these ongoing exhibitions. For that matter, it's mystifying that Christie himself, who reportedly had his eyes on a political career from quite early, would consider the patented rudeness and abrasiveness mentioned in the polling data useful assets as he charged forward. That's some major hubris, if Christie and his minions felt he had enough going otherwise to neutralize the highly toxic element in the package.

Then of course there was the Bridgegate mess. Again, one can't fathom why Christie would be convinced that his mere insistence of non-participation in or planning of that insidious closure of Washington Bridge lanes was enough for his accusers and the public to "move on." Folks in the very inner sanctum of his office operation being evidently involved in that episode of political dirty tricks unbeknownst to him, even if true, is hardly flattering to the governor's hands-on, take-care-of-business creds. A politician hoping to take the ultimate career leap can't realistically expect to not be tarred by rivals as incompetent or worse, in the face of a Bridgegate type plot hatched right under his nose.

The crystal ball picture may not have changed with dramatic quickness after the porous nature of Christie's so-called ascent became exposed, but with time his 2016 White House viability has settled into where it rightly belongs. On the personality thing, Christie denies being a "bully" whenever that discussion comes up. And in his understanding of the term, he honestly may not think himself a bully. Just as honestly should he concede that he's definitely not presidential.

What Obama's executive immigration order will do for you

By Gertrude Onuoha Esq.

On Nov. 20, 2014, President Obama announced a series of executive actions to enable undocumented immigrants remain in the United States. According to USCIS, Some important highlights are:

- Extending the deferred action period and employment authorization to three years from two years, and allows young people be considered for deferred action if they:

- Entered the United States before the age of 16;

- Have lived in the United States continuously since at least Jan.1, 2010, rather than the prior requirement of June 15, 2007;

- Are of any age (removes the requirement to have been born since June 15, 1981); and satisfy all the other requirements.

Obama's executive order allows parents to request deferred action and employment authorization if they:

- Have lived in the United States continuously since Jan. 1, 2010;

- Had, on Nov. 20, 2014, a son or daughter who is a U.S. citizen or lawful permanent resident;

- Are not an enforcement priority for removal from the United States, under the Nov. 20, 2014.

It is very important to note that all the conditions must exist in order for the application to be successful. If an undocumented immigrant has resided in the United States for over five years and has no son or daughter who is a U.S. citizen or lawful permanent resident, he/ she cannot get benefit under this category. If an undocumented immigrant has a son or daughter who is a U.S. citizen or lawful permanent, but has not resided in the United States continuously since Jan. 1 2010, he/she cannot benefit from this.

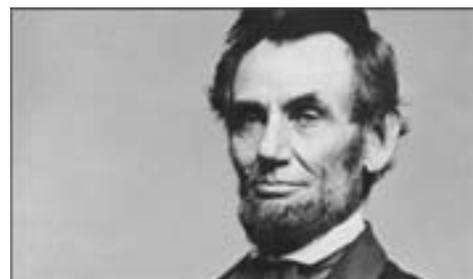

It is also pertinent to note that the executive order merely gives a differed action status and work authorizations. It does not confer or lead to Green card. The concept of deferred status has been very confusing to so many. According to Merriam Webster dictionary, the word "Deferred" means withheld for or until a stated time. It also means to postpone, put off, delay, or hold over. A deferred action status therefore enables the government to make a determination not to pursue removal or deportation of an undocumented or unlawfully present individual for a certain period of time.

Before the President Obama's announcement, illegal aliens who satisfy the requirement stated above would be required to leave the country. An individual who has been granted deferred action is eligible to receive employment authorization for the period of deferred action. Applicants will be required to go through a background check. An applicant with criminal history should speak to an attorney prior to submitting the application to avoid deportation.

A 28-year-old Jamaican man from the western parish of St. James was recently ordered extradited to the United States for lottery scamming activities.

U.S. prosecutors alleged Damion Bryan Barrett is part of a criminal network that fleeced millions of dollars from U.S. citizens in the lottery scam.

The extradition order was handed down after Barrett waived his right to challenge his extradition.

Barrett, who was arrested recently, will stand trial on two counts of wire fraud. Each count carries a maximum prison sentence of 30 years.

St. Lucia

The French overseas department of Martinique will become an associate member of the Organization of Eastern Caribbean States (OECS), according to an official statement released in Castries.

The St. Lucia-based OECS Commission said Martinique signed the necessary agreement earlier this month, increasing the nine-member sub-regional grouping to 10.

"Martinique's pending membership of the Organization of Eastern Caribbean States follows a period of negotiations after the Regional Council of Martinique submitted a formal application for associate membership in the OECS with full support/endorsement of the French government," said the OECS Commission.

In November 2013, the Regional Assembly voted unanimously in favor of the island's membership of the OECS.

OECS Director General Dr. Dida-cus Jules describes as "historic" the island's pending membership of the sub-regional grouping.

In the midst of a police investigation into allegations of witness tampering by former Attorney General Anand Ramlogn, a fourth Cabinet reshuffle just a few months before a general election, and the firing of two People's Partnership (PP) ministers, a recent poll has shown that if a general election were called now, Prime Minister Kamla Persad-Bissessar would be the top choice for Trinidad and Tobago's next Prime Minister.

Jamaican Father of Hip-Hop

By Vinette K. Pryce

On any given day, tourists and curious individuals stop at 1520 Sedgwick Ave. in the Bronx to take selfies and snap photos of the façade of the apartment building.

At a glance, there is nothing distinctive about the 102-unit, residential, high rise. But for those in the know, it is the birthplace of hip-hop.

According to Wikipedia: "in the summer of 2007, New York state officials declared 1520 Sedgwick Avenue the "birthplace of hip-hop" and nominated it to national and state historic registers."

How the landmark achieved its status is no mystery, as a matter of record, it was at that location that the "father of hip-hop" lived, honed his skill and propelled the underground sound from New York to become a worldwide phenomenon.

It all started with Jamaican immigrant Clive Campbell.

Born in Kingston, April 16, 1955, Campbell was the first of six children born to Keith and Nettie Campbell.

November 1967, at the age of 12, the family migrated to the Bronx. Their address is now history.

Campbell attended Alfred E. Smith High School and although he did not know it, he quickly responded to a different moniker. Because he was tall, played basketball and spent a lot of time in the weight room his colleagues called him Hercules.

Although he loved the basketball court, he also loved music. Reportedly his early influence of sound-systems in Jamaica lingered causing him to develop a habit of listening to the dominant rhythm and blues of his new home-base.

From his own account, Campbell aka Hercules convinced his father to buy him a copy of James Brown's "Sex Machine."

He not only listened to the 45 rpm record, he discovered technicalities about the track that caused him to secure a second copy. He regularly purchased two copies of the same record and played them on separate turntables next to each other.

"He would play the break beat on one record then throw it over to the other turntable and play the same part. Doing this over and over, he could rock any house in N.Y."

His love for music endeared him to imitate the soundmen he saw in Jamaica.

Soon he started deejaying in the recreation room of his building. While he played he realized that crowds on the dance floor responded most to the break section of the song.

"At this point in a song, the vocals would stop and the beat would just ride for short period," he recalled.

Inside the recreation room of his building, the self-made deejay played music at his sister's birthday party.

In order to sustain the momentum for a longer period of time, Hercules combined portions from two records -- a smart move that dubbed him Kool and proved a defining birthing for hip hop. It was that evening Kool DJ Herc became the originator of break-beat.

Dame Ruth Nita Barrow.

Barbados' first Gov. General Dame Nita Barrow

By Nelson A. King

Dame Ruth Nita Barrow, (Nov. 15, 1916 – Dec. 19, 1995) was the first and only female Governor General of Barbados.

She was a nurse and humanitarian activist, serving as governor general from June 6, 1990 until her death. She was also the sister of Errol Barrow, first prime minister of Barbados.

Dame Nita was born in Barbados, the second of her parents' five children. Trained as a nurse, midwife and health care administrator, she held several nursing, public health and public administration jobs in Barbados and Jamaica in the 1940s-1950s.

She was a member of the Commonwealth Group of Eminent Persons that visited South Africa in 1986.

During that mission, she successfully thwarted South Africa's military restrictions, through entering the restricted area of Alexandra Township disguised in African garb and head-dress, according to her biographical sketch.

Barrow studied nursing in Barbados, the Universities of Toronto and Edinburgh, and at Columbia University, New York City, according to Encyclopedia Britannica.

In 1964, she became an adviser to the World Health Organization (WHO) and rapidly gained international stature as nursing adviser (1967-71) to the Pan American Health Organization (PAHO); medical commissioner (1971-80); and a president (1983) of the World Council of Churches.

She was president (1975-83) of the World Young Women Christian Association (YWCA); health consultant (1981-86) to WHO; president (1982-90) of the International Council for Adult Education (ICAE); and Barbadian ambassador (1986-90) to the UN.

The Bronx-based Garifuna Coalition, U.S.A., Inc. says it is collaborating with the Garifuna Afro-Latino Entertainment in celebrating the 7th Annual Garifuna-American Heritage Month in New York City.

The Coalition said the March 11 – April 12 celebration is being held in observance of the 218th anniversary of the “forcible deportation of the Garifuna people” by the British from St. Vincent and the Grenadines on March 11, 1797 and their settlement in Central America on April 12, 1797.

“Garifuna-American Heritage Month provides an opportunity to recognize the significance of Garifuna’s contributions to the quality and character of life of New York City, and, through many events and activities throughout the month, for all people to gain a greater appreciation of Garifuna history and traditions, and of the role Garifuna-Americans have played, and will continue to play, in New York’s society,” the group said.

This year, the Coalition said it will pay tribute to the legendary Aurelio Martínez, who the group described as “the greatest international exponent of the Garifuna Culture and tradition, selected as the 2008-2009 Rolex Mentor and Protégé Arts Initiative.

“Garifuna-American Heritage Month has uplifted the Garifuna Community from obscurity to the pinnacle of recognition by raising awareness and appreciation of the Garifuna Community and its contribution to the culture and society of New York City,” the group said.

“We look at 2015 as the turning point to advance the integration of the Garifuna Community of New York, with the aim of promoting its advancement and economic development,” it added.

New York City is regarded as the home of the largest Garifuna population outside of Central America, with over 200,000.

In the spirit of the International Decade for People of African Descent (2015 -2024), the Coalition said it is also launching a “cultural economic development strategy around culture, creativity and sustainable development, with the aim of positioning New York City as the epicenter of the Garifuna arts and culture economy.”

As part of that strategy, the group said a musical tribute in honor of Martínez will be launched on March 14 during Garifuna-American Heritage Month. The event takes place at the Hostos Center for the Arts & Culture, 450 Grand Concourse, Bronx.

“This will be the premier Garifuna event in the U.S.A., and we invite you to be a participant in this historic moment,” the Coalition said.

It also said New York City Council’s District 16 member Vanessa L. Gibson

A row boat filled with Garifuna arrives at the shores of Punta Gorda, in the island of Roatan, Honduras, April 12, 2004 during Ayumenhanin, a reenactment of the Garifuna landing on the island in 1797. The Garifuna, who are native Caribbean islanders and slaves put together by the British in 1797, are watching their language and their traditions disappear as Honduras, and the rest of the world have reached into their seaside community.

will present a proclamation, declaring March 1 - April 12 Garifuna-American Heritage Month, on March 11 at the City Council Chambers, City Hall, lower Manhattan.

“Garifuna-American Heritage Month celebrates the great contributions of Garifuna-funa-Americans to the fabric of New York City and New York State, and pays tribute to the common culture and bonds of friendship that unite the United States and the Garifuna’s countries of origin – Belize, Guatemala, Honduras, Nicaragua, and St. Vincent and the Grenadines,” the statement said.

A lifelong resident of New York City, Gibson has a “strong commitment to serving her Bronx community and has established a strong working relationship with many community-based organizations throughout much of the Bronx, including the Garifuna Coalition, U.S.A., Inc.,” the Coalition said.

It said the Garifunas have been migrating to New York City in search of a better life since the 1930s.

The Coalition said the community in New York was “virtually obscured until the Happy Land Social Club fire on Mar. 25, 1990,” with the majority of the victims being Garifunas.

“Thanks to the support of elected officials, such as Ms. Gibson, the Garifuna Coalition U.S.A., Inc. has uplifted the Garifuna Community from obscurity to the pinnacle of recognition as it celebrates the 7th Annual Garifuna American Heritage Month in New York – a tribute to the Garifunas survival and resiliency,” the statement said.

In 2015, it said the Garifunas celebrate 192 years of the “Garifuna Oral and Intangible Cultural Heritage’s contribution to New York City’s vibrant cultural life”.

The Coalition said that, in 1823, William Henry Brown, reportedly the first American playwright of African descent, wrote “The Drama of King Shotaway,” recognized as the first black drama of the American theatre.

Browne had as the drama’s subject the 1795 Black Caribs (Garifunas) defense of mainland St. Vincent, led by paramount Garifuna Chief Joseph Chatoyer, “against colonization by the British,” the Coalition said.

Small Orlando sandal business attracts big attention

By Kate Santich, Orlando Sentinel

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP) — In a small concrete-block office in downtown Orlando, Julie Colombino — a former Cirque aerialist turned disaster-relief worker — is trying to change the world through sandals.

Colombino, 35, is surrounded by scores of them: simple, hand-crafted sandals of Haitian goat leather and recycled tires — sandals whose creation has caught the attention of both the United Nations and New York fashion mogul Kenneth Cole.

He's now selling them.

"It's crazy," Colombino says. "When I started, I never fathomed it would be like this."

In January 2010, a week and a half after a catastrophic 7.0 earthquake struck Haiti, Colombino left her Winter Park home and caught a flight to the epicenter of the disaster. An estimated 160,000 people were dead; two million people were newly homeless.

She soon found herself stationed in a first-aid camp, irrigating gaping wounds and handing out expired Tylenol to those who really needed morphine.

"I had no medical expertise, and we had no real pain medication to give them," she says.

At times, surrounded by the sights, sounds and stench of agony, it was all she could do not to pass out.

Yet a month into her mission — a month of sleeping in a tent, sometimes without fresh water or food, each night worrying she would be raped — she returned to Central Florida only to resign from her job, sell her belongings and take her $7,000 in life savings back to Haiti.

"I know it sounds lofty," she says, "but the truth is that I was just called to it."

"Julie is fearless," says Robert Brown, president and CEO of the Heart of Florida United Way, where Colombino worked a day job. "I mean, she used to swing on those curtains they have at Cirque. I figured if she could do that, she could do just about anything."

Those initial, chaotic months are now largely a blur, save for one lasting impression: Once people moved beyond the basics of food, water and medical care, what they wanted most was a job. Even before the earthquake, Haiti was the poorest nation in the Western Hemisphere.

In the devastated capital of Port-au-Prince, Colombino used her tiny nest egg to hire four Haitian workers and launch REBUILD Globally, a nonprofit, in a lean-to covered by a tarp. Together, the five would sit on the floor, using razor blades to cut sandal soles from discarded tires that would otherwise be burned as rubbish.

"They were horrendous," Colombino says of the early results. "They were heavy and ugly. But we were really proud of them, and people were actually starting to buy them, which blew our minds."

They sold for $20 a pair, mostly to foreign aid workers.

Associated Press / Orlando Sentinel, Red Huber

Colombino then hired a Haitian cobbler to train her workers on the finer points of shoe-making, and with each prototype, the sandals grew more attractive and comfortable. A team from Nike showed them how to incorporate arch support, and, in 2012, the United Nations team in Haiti granted REBUILD $30,000 to help the operation has never been just about selling sandals. In Haiti, REBUILD's social enterprise is considered revolutionary. Colombino's organization pays the workers a decent salary — an average of 225 percent above the Haitian minimum wage of $5.11 a day — allowing them to buy their own homes and, often, to "adopt" their own children back from orphanages. Many of the parents, Colombino learned, had been forced by extreme poverty to surrender their sons and daughters to someone who could feed and shelter them.

Inequality fuels HIV epidemic in the Caribbean

Outspoken artist Edison Liburd, in St. John's, Antigua.

Inter Press Service / Desmond Brown

HEALTH

By Desmond Brown

ST. JOHN'S, Antigua, Feb. 10, 2015 (IPS) - At 49 years old, Edison Liburd has established himself as one of Antigua and Barbuda's most recognisable artists. But Liburd was not always in the spotlight. In fact, you could say he was a man in hiding.

"I have been infected with the HIV virus for about 24 years. I got my first HIV test done in February of 1993 at the Allen Pavilion Hospital in Manhattan New York," Liburd told IPS.

"I can remember that day vividly. I felt like the earth had been removed from beneath me when I was handed the results of the test."

HIV/AIDS first emerged in the 1980s, and now, more than three decades later, stigma associated with the disease has persisted. Liburd pointed to that stigma as the main reason why he concealed his HIV status for as long as he did.

"I hid my status for years from family. I told a few friends, but most people who I knew did not know anything about my health condition. It was fear of being ostracised that kept me from disclosing my status," he said.

"In Antigua, HIV infected individuals still have to face job insecurity – first to be fired and last to be hired. Stigma and discrimination is still high because many still think themselves superior to individuals who are infected.

"Somehow they think themselves better than, but I believe that it is when infected individuals become empowered by taking hold of their health and indispensable to nation building that this will take a huge bite out of discrimination. People will begin to see you differently," Liburd said.

The Caribbean is one of the most heavily affected regions in the world, with adult HIV prevalence about one percent higher than in any other region outside sub-Saharan Africa.

The HIV pandemic in the Caribbean is fuelled by a range of social and economic inequalities and is sustained by high levels of stigma, discrimination against the most at-risk and marginalised populations and persistent gender inequality, violence and homophobia.

HIV in the Caribbean is mostly concentrated in and around networks of men who have sex with men. Social stigma, however, has kept the epidemic among men who have sex with men hidden and unacknowledged. There is also a notable burden of infection among injecting drug users, sex workers and the clients of sex workers.

The main mode of transmission in the Caribbean is unprotected heterosexual intercourse – paid or otherwise. Sex between men is also thought to be a significant factor in several countries, although due to social stigma, this is mainly denied.

The level of stigma and discrimination suffered by those infected and affected by the virus in the Caribbean helps drive the epidemic underground. This makes it difficult to reach many groups.

After facing the worst of his fears, being hospitalised and getting close to death's door, Liburd has "resolved to fight back against the discrimination by increasing my capacity to help others in every way through my gift of art and my voice on and in the media, in church and otherwise.

"This has really been a powerhouse for me. I have become more confident and bold when faced with opposition. It has and is still more than ever being a source of inspiration and encouragement for many who hear my story, both infected and non-infected alike."

Executive director of the Antigua and Barbuda HIV/AIDS Network (ABHAN), Eleanor Frederick, said individuals living with HIV face many challenges such as unemployment, homelessness, and in some cases, they are abandoned by their families.

Her volunteer services have taken her to Guyana, the Caribbean and Africa. In February 2014, she travelled with a missionary team to Kenya.

With a passion for preventive health, Howell pursued nursing at New Amsterdam Hospital School of Nursing in Guyana, where she received the Registered Nurse and Midwifery certificates.

On migrating to the United States, Howell pursued studies in anesthesiology, and became a certified nurse anesthetist, a field she remained in for 40 years.

She holds a B.S. degree in Health Education and a M.A. degree in Higher Adult Education.

Howell's studies paved the way for her current role as a natural health nutrition and fitness educator and family life facilitator. She has participated in a number of medical mission trips with APC Medical Team.

At age 19, Dr. Rodney joined the Guyana Corrections / Prisons Service, where he served as an assistant prison officer. Three years later, he was promoted to the positions of Prison Officer and Spiritual Advisor.

Simultaneously, Rodney was assigned assistant to the pastor/ elder in charge of the Shiloh Mission of SDA, now Stuyvesant SDA Church in Brooklyn.

During the 2001 World Trade Center Disaster, Rodney served as a first responder Red Cross chaplain and a mental health specialist at Ground Zero. He is also a New York City licensed marriage officer and notary public.

Rodney is employed with the New York City Department of Education as a guidance counselor.

Last November, Rodney was conferred the Doctor of Divinity degree from CICA International University and Seminary.

"APC Community Services, Inc. is grateful for the opportunity to serve the residents of Brooklyn," said Janice Emanuel Bunn, the group's Guyanese-born president and founder. "I wish to thank all our supporters for helping us to fulfill our goals the past 19 years."

She said the group has "successfully" sponsored the Caribbean Health Summit, Caribbean Heritage Celebration and the Caribbean Wellness Day for the last five years, adding that these events have impacted our community in a "positive way."

Additionally, Dr. Emanuel-Bunn said APC Community Services, Inc. has conducted seven medical mission trips, with "thousands benefited from our services."

"To everyone present this evening at this gala, we welcome and thank you for sharing this special occasion with us," she said. "APC Community Services is committed to providing quality services to our community. We serve with compassion and a deep appreciation for the people in our neighborhoods."

Marine Park Funeral Home there for Brooklynites in difficult time

BY CAMILLE SPERRAZZA

Marine Park Funeral Home has been serving the Brooklyn community for four generations.

John Pavone is the owner of the business, which was started by his grandfather. His daughter, Nora E. Pavone, a recent graduate of mortician school, is proud to carry on the family tradition of providing dignified funeral services at affordable pricing.

Marine Park Funeral Home, in existence all these years, has serviced more Brooklynites than any other funeral home in the borough, says manager Michael Horkan. The company believes in doing everything possible to honor the memories of loved ones by offering multicultural services that take place at grave sites, churches, temples, or other locations. In addition, arrangements can be made with authorities to transport the remains of the deceased to destinations throughout the world.

The facility offers a peaceful, home-like setting, where the goal is to make everyone feel comfortable. The grounds are beautiful; filled with lush greenery. The interrior is continuously updated so rooms remain clean and people can feel more relaxed. The large parking area offers ample space for cars. Small conveniences like these can mean so much when people are heartbroken with grief.

The staff of 10 full-time employees and numerous part-time workers strives to meet the needs of every family.

"Professionalism is mandatory," says Horkan. "That's our strong point." The staff is dignified and dresses respectfully.

While much has remained the same about funerals, in recent years, some changes have been observed. One is that more people are opting for cremation. As a result of this growing need, Marine Park Funeral Home has built a special viewing room for families.

"Dignity is not sacrificed," says Horkan. "We still dress the deceased and lay out the body." Families can spend time with the deceased and then accompany staff to the cremation, if desired. There are no additional fees.

"It's all done at the same cost of what a simple cremation would be," says Horkan.

Ceremonies are becoming more agnostic, too, says Horkan. They are more personalized, to reflect the lifestyle of an individual.

"Clergies are not as popular," he says. Instead, family and friends want to speak about special remembrances, and the funeral home can help with planning this. Sometimes, the staff acts as "master of ceremonies," he says, introducing speakers, and saying a few words about the deceased as well. The company can make arrangements for flowers, limousines, cemetery plots, monuments, and more. Caskets are on display at the premises, allowing the opportunity to see what is being purchased.

Another developing trend is that people want to make their own funeral arrangements while they are still alive, and Marine Park Funeral Home invites those who do to come in to discuss the details, without any cost or obligation on their part. The specific requests will be kept on file, and those who have planned them can tell their loved ones where to find this relevant information. Then, when these details are needed, Marine Park Funeral Home will share them.

"It's a way to make wishes known," says Horkan. It offers peace of mind, and doesn't leave loved ones second-guessing during a difficult time of grief.

Marine Park Funeral Home turns no one away because of cost. It accepts life insurance assignments, and will contact insurance companies to verify that funds are there.

"We would be paid just the cost of the funeral," says Horkan, and will wait to receive this payment directly from the insurance carrier which usually takes at least a month, again easing the burden of loved ones.

Leading community figure passes at age 70

The late Selwyn Cumberbatch.

By Nelson A. King

Selwyn Cumberbatch, a leading Vincentian community figure in New York and a former staff sergeant in the Royal St. Vincent and the Grenadines Police Force, died on Feb. 9. He was 70.

Relatives did not state the cause of death but said Cumberbatch, originally from Richmond Hill, Kingstown, the Vincentian capital, was “engaged to be married on September 2015 to Barbara Capers, of New York.”

Cumberbatch, affectionately known as “Compo” – who migrated to New York in 1980 with his late wife, the former Elva Alves – had resided in Brooklyn ever since “and soon became an icon in the community,” relatives said.

He was a member of – and supported – many Vincentian and Caribbean organizations in the New York metropolitan area, relatives said.

Cumberbatch was a former president of the Brooklyn-based

St. Vincent and the Grenadines Ex-Police Association of New York, Inc. and the Council of St. Vincent and the Grenadines’ Organizations, U.S.A., Inc. (COSAGO), the umbrella Vincentian group in the United States, which is also based in Brooklyn. Additionally, up to his death, he was a lay speaker at St. Mark’s United Methodist Church in the Flatbush section of Brooklyn.

Parishioners said he officiated at the church’s worship service the day before he died.

Relatives said Cumberbatch had “an extensive career” in the Royal St. Vincent and the Grenadines Police Force, where he also served as a detective and “person-in-charge at the Windward district in Biabou.

“There, many still [who] revere him as the person instrumental in establishing the soccer league,” said relatives, stating that he was an “outstanding long distance runner in his youth, and excelled in cricket and soccer in St. Vincent [and the Grenadines].”

Cumberbatch began his career in New York as a security officer at the then Manufacturers Hanover Trust bank, now Chase Bank, while pursuing a degree in banking at Pace University.

Relatives said he “survived” several banking mergers, finally retiring in 2011 from the Bank of New York Mellon.

He inspired his children and grandchildren to achieve degrees in chemical engineering, accounting, finance, business administration, sociology, criminal justice, marketing and development administration, relatives said.

In devoting his spiritual life to St. Mark’s United Methodist Church, relatives said Cumberbatch “spent countless hours in private study of the scriptures.

“He became in fixture at Wednesday night meetings and regular church service,” they said. “More than anything else, Selwyn excelled in fellowship.”

“He had a knack for extending himself to all, with great charisma, charm, a quick wit and extreme dedication,” they added. “You can count on him to prepare [ing] food, supporting events [and] lend [ing] personal assistance.”

He “just made everyone feel beloved, no matter the occasion,” relatives continued. “His smile and kindness will survive him into all eternity. He will be missed by all.”

Cumberbatch – who was born on Dec. 15, 1944 to the late Vincent and Mary Cumberbatch, of Richmond Hill – was the father of five: Colin, La-Ferne, Petrona, Laurie and Curtis (who predeceased him).

His siblings include Kenrick, Noel, Brian, Bertram, Leroy (deceased) and his only sister, Yvonne.

Trinidadian expat Horace L. Morancie succumbs

By Vinette K. Pryce

A pall fell on the city Tuesday, Feb. 4 with news of the death of Horace L. Morancie.

The painful reality of the passing of the 85-year-old, Trinidad & Tobago expatriate resonated with nostalgia as Brooklyn residents recalled the relentless effort made by the immigrant who dedicated time and effort to the improvement of housing conditions of less privileged city dwellers.

"He was one of the most powerful technocrats of the 60's and 70s," Herman Hall, publisher of Everybody's Magazine said.

According to the Caribbean documenter of historic achievements, Morancie worked tirelessly "during the civil rights era of the 1960s when white liberal political leaders in New York City sought to place qualified Blacks in high profile administrative positions."

At the time, President Lyndon B. Johnson banked on advancing his war on poverty campaign. With support for the anti-poverty plan, the city's then Mayor John Lindsay, a Republican chose Morancie, a fellow party supporter to tackle social issues in the borough and primarily the urgency of residents living in Central Brooklyn's Bedford-Stuyvesant community.

Morancie reportedly met the criteria both academically and politically.

Educated at Brooklyn Polytechnic University, Harvard University, Kennedy School of Government, Cornell University and Brooklyn Law School he qualified for an appointment to lead the charge in Brooklyn for reform of housing conditions. Soon afterwards, he was named director of the Model Cities Program, the principal advocacy agency for fair and affordable housing, improved social services, sports and culture.

Morancie's accomplishments and reputation became a positive for the party so much so that he was chosen to rival the almost-invincible Shirley Chisholm, a strong Democratic candidate.

Allegedly, T&T Prime Minister Eric Williams was enamored by his countryman's dedication to improving the lot of others and on occasion encouraged Morancie to return to his birthplace to contribute with nation building of the newly-independent republic. In addition to advocating for the needy, Morancie was admired for his patriotic dedication to T&T.

didates were Harris, an economist; Amory; Shawn Richards; Eugene Hamilton; Ian Patrick Liburd; Lindsay Grant; and Mark Brantley, opposition leader in the last Parliament.

Victors for SKNLP/NRP were Douglas; Marcella Liburd, former health minister; Conrad Maynard and Patrice Nisbett.

In conceding defeat, Douglas, in a nationwide radio and television address, extended "sincere congratulations" to Team Unity, adding that it was a "sacred honor" to lead the nation for two decades.

"To the friends and members of the St. Kitts-Nevis Labor Party, you have my undying gratitude," he said. "We, in St. Kitts and Nevis, are among the blessed of the earth. And we are among the blessed of the earth because our governments are chosen, not by force, not by decree, not by the whim of any force or interest, but by the will of the people."

"I shall forever cherish having been given the opportunity to lead the Federation of St. Kitts and Nevis," Douglas added. "The elections are now over, and although we still await the announcement of the preliminary results, I wish our newly elected government well."

Meantime, the Electoral Observation Mission of the Organization of American States (OAS/EOM) in St.

Kitts and Nevis, led by Ambassador Frank Almaguer, congratulated the citizens of the country for their "active participation" in the general elections.

The EOM said there was high voter turnout and that citizens demonstrated "civil and peaceful exercise of their franchise on Election Day."

The Mission, however, noted that the counting and transmission of results was "extremely slow, stemming from a series of procedural difficulties."

"More than 12 hours after the closing of the polls, there was no information on the outcome of the election, leading to speculation and uncertainty among Kittitians and Nevisians," it said, adding that the delay in the dissemination of results was related to two main issues.

First, it said counting started late due to instructions given to returning officers with regard to the transportation of the ballot boxes of the early voting, carried out on Feb. 14 for essential services personnel and security forces.

Second, the Mission said challenges were presented during the counting process, and that some of the results were being contested.

But despite the problems encountered after the closing of the polls, the EOM said it was pleased to observe that in general, Election Day was carried out in an "orderly and pacific manner."

JA diaspora urged to nominate honorary citizens

Candidates for awards of Jamaica's annual national civil honors are urged to submit nomination forms in order to meet the March 13 deadline set by the Jamaica Consulate for appointments to the Order of Merit, the Order of Jamaica, the Order of Distinction – in the rank of commander class (CD) and officer (OD).

Individuals interested in seeking consideration for the island's highest national honors must act quickly to complete the guidelines set for the 2015 presentation.

Along with the top three honors, awards of the badge of honor for gallantry, meritorious service and for long and faith service entitles Jamaicans and foreign-born nominees worthy of recognition to apply for consideration.

Conferred by the governor general with advice from the prime minister of the island, the prestigious honors can be conferred posthumously to any individual of distinction that has achieved excellence in the field of arts, science, literature or any other endeavor distinguished.

If the nominee is a citizen of a country other than Jamaica, the government of Jamaica is required to obtain the approval of the relevant commonwealth or foreign government prior to the awards of any order of decoration to the nominee.

In order to present a total description of the nominee and also aid in adding pertinent information that could enhance the selection process, a current biographical outline should accompany the submission.

One of the principal details should include valuable service to the island that could be considered worthy of recognition.

For more information, contact the Jamaica Consulate, 767 Third Ave. 2nd & 3rd Floors, New York 10017.

Two Weeks Braata Reveal "The Black That I Am"

As Black History Month

merge with Women's History Month, a theatrical production billed "The Black That I Am" will "explore Black-ness and identity from the perspective of a Caribbean immigrant pursuing the American Dream in New York City."

Influenced by an original poem written by Karl O'Brian Williams, the play will have its U.S. premiere for two weekends beginning in Queens on Feb. 25, 26 and 27 ending the following weekend, March 8 in Manhattan.

Using monologues to punctuate specific issues, the poignant piece "take the audience on a personal yet political journey that goes back and forth between borders, and barriers, celebrating and questioning the notions of 'place' and 'position' in society."

The poem and production is a response to this realization. It weaves through the production highlighting issues of inequality, misplaced nationalistic fervor, gender, sexuality, and a racial perspective he described as "colorism."

The playwright said he was "never more aware or concerned as much with race until he left the island of Jamaica and came to the United States."

Currently, a lecturer in the speech and theatre department at The Borough of Manhattan Community College (CUNY), in addition, Williams proudly boasts his position as the artistic director for Braata Productions. Along with founder Andrew Clarke, together they collaborate to "provide entertainment and education to our patrons, and give voice to our diverse issues, performers, writers and directors."

"We aim to represent with creative authenticity the folk culture of the Caribbean islands."

Williams' particular interest revolves around pursuing artistic projects that interrogate socio-political issues.

FANTASTIC MONTANO

By Azad Ali

Machel Montano showed once again he is the boss of soca when he copped the International Power Monarch for the fifth straight year on "Fantastic Friday" night at the Hasley Crawford Stadium, Port of Spain, Trinidad, to kick off of the Carnival celebrations in Trinidad and Tobago.

Montano successfully defended his crown, for what he says is the final time before passing the reins to new Groovy Soca Monarch Olatunji Yearwood.

His soca composition, "Like A Boss" backed by his band A-Team was way ahead of his 11 competitors.

Iwer George took second place with "Play Ah Mas" and in third position was Nicki "Granny" Crosby with a song "Go Granny."

Montano speaking after he won the title said he is bowing out of competition but remains a source of support for all local artistes of all genres who are seeking his advice and direction. He has set his sights on his lifelong dream of winning a Grammy award and taking music to mainstream international.

"I want to make soca music now to touch the world," he said.

The five-time Power Soca monarch and two-time Groovy Soca monarch said the time was right to change lanes and step away from the competitive arena.

In the Groovy monarch category Olatunji Yearwood took the title with "Ola," while Farmer Nappy (Darryl Henry) was second with "My House" and in third place was Ricardo Drue singing "Vagabond" and Destra Garcia placed fourth with "Lucy."

Roderick "Chucky" Gordon retained his Calypso Monarch title beating 12

'Honest Illusions' to parade in Guyana

By Tangerine Clarke

New York mas band "Honest Illusions" is ready to capture the crown in the medium band category when revelers take to the streets of Georgetown to celebrate Guyana's 45th Republic Anniversary and Mashramani Parade on Feb. 23.

With an impressive showing last year, Brian Roberts, CEO and founder of "Honest Illusions" is ready for a showdown with his themed "Evolution of Carnival" band that will showcase "Chameleon" and "Eruption."

Roberts said the two sections "Fly Jamaica Airways" and "Honest Illusions" would emphasize the way change takes place through the natural environment and in life.

Fly Jamaica, he explained, listened to its customers and implemented positive change that will be reflected in the band's presentation.

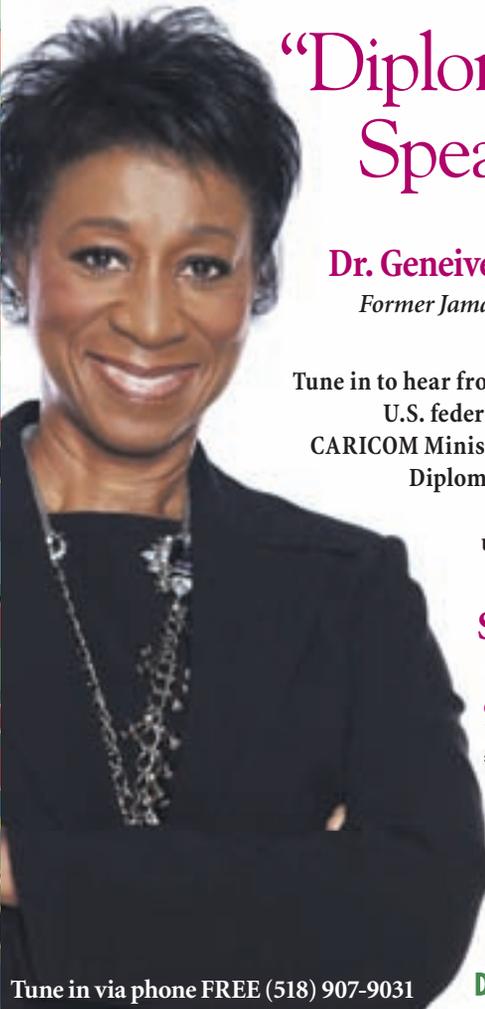

Such developments are the airline's recent announcement of direct scheduled roundtrip flights from New York to Georgetown and its successful two-year anniversary in the aviation industry.

Noted costume designer Preston Hall will celebrate the band's second foray at Mashramani with a dazzling array of costumes in bold green and a blend of colors consistent with Fly Jamaica's brand.

The bikini costumes are designed with embellished headpieces made of quality feathers and a dazzling array of colorful jewels that will be sure to sway the judges, and delight specta-

Fetish flick fails to match erotic best-seller hype

“Fifty Shades of Grey”
Fair (1.5 stars)
Rated R for profanity, violence, sexuality
and graphic nudity
Running time:
125 minutes
Distributor:
Universal Pictures

By Kam Williams

“Fifty Shades of Grey” marked the remarkable writing debut of TV executive-turned-romance novelist Erika Mitchell. Publishing under the pen name E.L. James, the British author has enjoyed unparalleled success, selling over 100 million copies worldwide in just a few years.

Her erotic thriller chronicles the kinky relationship of a college coed and a handsome, young billionaire with a sordid sexual appetite for sadomasochism. Unfortunately, this relatively-tame screen version, directed by Sam Taylor-Johnson (Nowhere Boy), teases more than it titillates, as it devotes plenty of time build up prior to petering out in terms of delivery.

At the point of departure, we meet vestal virgin Anastasia Steele (Dakota Johnson) as she’s about to drive from Vancouver to Seattle to the corporate headquarters of Grey Enterprises to interview CEO Christian Grey (Jamie Dornan) for her college newspaper. The English major’s only been allotted 10 minutes with the busy captain of industry slated to deliver the keynote commencement address at her school’s upcoming graduation.

Upon being introduced, obviously intimidated Ana awkwardly asks “To what do you owe your success” and “Are you gay?” before her subject confesses to being a control freak. Turning the tables, Christian proceeds to pose probing personal questions to the nervous journalist, as a palpable sexual tension between the two starts to simmer just beneath the surface.

He reveals his fondness for a particular fetish, however nothing is consummated for a long stretch. Instead, the first half of the film is devoted to a frustrating Kabuki dance where foreplay invariably leads to coitus interruptus.

In lieu of the whips, chains and other staples of bondage debauchery, we’re treated to cautious exchanges during which a whimpering, wide-eyed Ana repeatedly says how scared she is of Christian while he insists she sign a non-disclosure agreement allowing him to torture her. Yes, they eventually do get around to entering his dungeon but, by then, their bland, anticlimactic sessions prove to be a classic case of too little-too late.

A monochromatic misfire featuring only one shade: blushing pink.

Sesame Flyers expert designer Zellena Joy will make her debut with "Honest Illusions" to showcase "Eruption," which mimics a volcanic transformation from emission to growth.

This is in keeping with Honest Illusions' commitment to building its capabilities from quality design and production, multimedia services, website, graphic design image, as well as photography and videography.

Revelers in this section will be dressed in yellow to represent the hot smoldering volcanic lava motif.

Masqueraders will choose from a collection of bikini creations to revel in the front line sections of the band, or colorful spandex outfits.

Guyana's sweetheart and diva, Lisa Punch, finalist in the hugely popular ABC TV show, Rising Star, will be the face of the band.

Punch and sensational Soca singer Jumo Prino will perform with legendary string orchestra Mingles along the parade route.

He sang "Believe and The Rose" a composition about how Prime Minister Kamla Persad-Bissessar does not smell like a rose again because of all the missteps of her government.

In second place was Devon Seale singing "My Humble Plea" calling on the prime minister to "Go Nah" and "Soul Judges."

No one expected the brutal assault against the prime minister and the scathing rebuke she received over her poor governance. Some of her ministers also came in for some heavy fire from all of the competitors, including those who were recently fired.

Massy Trinidad All Stars captured the National Panorama title for the ninth time at the Panorama finals held at the Queen's Park Savannah on Saturday night.

Playing in position No. 4 in the Large Band category, members dressed in black and gold, gave a highly spirited performance of "Sweet 50", a song the arranger composed in celebration of the band's 50th anniversary. The composition was named "Unquestionable."

In second place was Petrotrin Phase 11 playing "Happiness" and Republic Bank Exodus tied for third place with PSC Nitrogen Silver Stars. Ten bands faced the judges in the Large Band category.

Roland St George was crowned King of Carnival 2015, while Stephanie Kanhai took the Queen of Carnival title with her portrayal of "The Sweet St. George won with his portrayal of "Ahtwaje," with 433 points to defeat his nearest rival Teddy Eustace, who paraded as "Saramanga-D World Bat" (429 points).

The competition was held by the National Carnival Band Association at the Queen's Park Savannah, Port of Spain on Friday night.

St. George last won the title in 2012.

New faces hunt for a roster spot

By Patrick Horne

The New York Red Bulls are in Bradenton (Fl.) readying for the upcoming season with new coach Jesse Marsh, his staff and several new trialists. According to news from the club, among the new faces in the hunt for a roster spot is a very familiar one in Jamaican international and former Red Bull, Dane Richards. The speedy Richards was a fan favorite here and many rued his transfer to the Vancouver Whitecaps at mid-season in 2012 after several eventful years as a Red Bull, for forward Sebastien Le Toux, who was a flop and didn't last beyond a year. Marsh, though, seems to have an open approach to fielding the best team possible and is leaving no stone unturned in his efforts.

Richards, who is second in appearances all-time for the Red Bulls with Basketball buffs were also treated to two previous days festivities, hosted by Barclays Center in Brooklyn, home of the Brooklyn Nets.

At both sites, fans from all over the world, including the Caribbean were treated to some tremendous play by individual stars, with three-point shooting, skills competition, dunking, a celebrity game, NBA Developmental league all-star play, and a rising stars challenge. The latter and the development league game showcased the stars of the future.

While the Brooklyn Nets have an excellent chance of making the playoffs, maybe, not winning the Eastern Conference title, the Knicks have suffered for most of the season with injuries especially to star players, and inconsistent good play, still have a slim shot at making the second season.

One of the Nets' players among the future super stars was second-year center Mason Plumlee who competed on the USA Team against the World Team. His Nets' teammate Bojan Bogdanovic of the same Nets, played on the World Team roster in the Rising Stars Challenge over the weekend. Plumlee did his best in the Slam Dunk competition.

"It's an honor to be in the dunk contest," Plumlee said. "We all had a good time."

All the fans in the stands were very impressed with the way they demonstrated the game, or exhibition, as one would say. They demonstrated skill, speed and strategy in the three-point shooting contest.

"As we get into the second half of the season, we are looking to win more games (and move up in the Conference standings)," the 24-year-old Plumlee said about the remaining two months of the 2014-15 season. "I'm trying to enjoy it (my stay with the Nets). We are headed in the right direction."

Looking to their remaining games especially down the stretch drive, and from their own conference, the Nets must be ready and on top of their game, and must find ways to win.

147 from 2007-12, bounced around European clubs the past two years. After a free transfer from the Whitecaps in 2013, he made stops at English League club Burnley and Norwegian club Bodo Glimt.

"Dane has qualities that could fit into the way we want to play," said Marsh. "Obviously he has experiences here - I think his time here was good for him and the club. We're taking a look at him and knowing there's potential for him to be available and how it might fit."

Richards played an integral part in the club's most successful year, in the 2008 MLS Cup run, and scored 21 goals and 24 assists as a Red Bull. "My mind is not on a contract my mind is on playing well and eventually things will fall into place. Right now I'm just focused on training hard," Richards told the Red Bulls media.

The team will lay play four matches at the IMG Suncoast Pro Classic in the next two weeks, which would be the last looks for Richards and other invitees, including defenders Jhon Kennedy Hurtado, previously with Chivas USA, Canadian international Karl Ouimette, Jamaican international Kemar Lawrence and Anthony Wallace, previously of the Colorado Rapids.

Local boy signed

Meanwhile, the Red Bulls on Tuesday announced that the club signed local product Mike Grella of Glen Cove (LI), a former Duke University All-American, who was drafted by Toronto FC in the 2009 MLS SuperDraft.

"Mike has come into camp and earned this contract," said Marsh in a statement. "He showed up and has worked hard since day one. His form has been great, but his attitude and work ethic have been even better."

Grella, now 28, made 40 appearances for Leeds United in the English League Championship and also appeared for Danish SuperLiga side Viborg and last April signed with the Carolina RailHawks of the NASL.

"We're very pleased with what Mike has shown us," said Red Bulls sporting director Ali Curtis. "He embodies attributes we're looking for in terms of character and effort. We feel that he will add value to our roster and be a positive presence for our club on the field and in the locker room."

The Red Bulls also signed recently retired defender Ibrahim Sekagya, who played for the club since 2013, as a member of the technical staff.

relationship when they met at a party in 2013.

After about 18 months, Ho said she broke up with Simmons after she discovered that he was engaged to be married while involved with her.

She then contacted Simmons fiancé at the time, now his current wife, to inform her of the situation.

In response, she claims that Simmons allegedly used several mobile apps, including Viber, to send photos of sexual acts they took while together to her former boyfriend and to several of his friends, including his local and regional team-mates Dwayne Bravo and Kieron Pollar who are expected to be summoned as witnesses in the trial expected to take place on March 23, 2015.

Besides damaging her reputation, Ho is claiming the release of the images also caused her significant distress.

The 30-year-old cricketer has denied ever being involved with Ho but admitted that the two had a brief singular sexual encounter.

Simmons has played for the West Indies in eight Test matches, 61 One-Day Internationals and 34 Twenty20s. He made his Test debut in 2009.

WICB elections set for March 7

The West Indies Cricket Board (WICB) will have its elections on March 7, 2015. President of the WICB Whycliffe Dave Cameron will be running for re-election and his running mate is Emmanuel Nathan. Former West Indies fast bowler Joel Garner will be challenging Cameron for the position. Garner is also the president of the Barbados Cricket Association. His running mate will be Baldath Mahabir, Trinidad and Tobago Cricket Board's representative. Elections will take place at the Jamaica Pegasus Hotel in Kingston, Jamaica.

Election participants and votes

1. Guyana Cricket Board - 2 votes 2 reps.
2. Barbados Cricket Association - 2 votes 2 reps
3. Jamaica Cricket Association - 2 votes 2 reps
4. Leeward Island Cricket Association - 2 votes 2 reps
5. Windward Islands Cricket Board - 2 votes 2 reps
6. Trinidad and Tobago Cricket Board - 2 votes. 2 reps

West Indies must modify their World Cup strategy

Several changes should be made to the West Indies batting order. Chris Gayle along with Dwayne Smith must do some bowling. Batting order should be as follows:

1. Chris Gayle
2. Denesh Ramdin
3. Andre Russell
4. Darren Bravo
5. Dwayne Smith
6. Marlon Samuels

7. Jonathan Carter
8. Darren Sammy
9. Jason Holder
10. Kemar Roach
11. Jerome Taylor

Change Of batting order will create stability

The reshuffling of the West Indies batting order for the World Cup should cause players to be more responsible and take their roles seriously. West Indies stand-in Head Coach Stuart Williams must encourage players to play their roles. It is necessary to have a batting shift and only the West Indies team stays with one order all the time.

ICC World Cup 2015 update

Ireland won the toss and sends the West Indies into bat. West Indies found themselves into early trouble after Dwayne Smith, Chris Gayle, Darren Bravo, Marlon Samuels and Denesh Ramdin fell cheaply and West Indies were five wickets down for 87 runs. Darren Sammy and Lendl Simmons stroked away at the crease and carved up a partnership of 154 runs before Sammy fell for 89 runs from 67 balls. Simmons scored 102 runs from 84 balls, hitting nine fours and five massive sixes, Andre Russel scored 27 runs from 13 balls. West Indies ended their 50 overs scoring 307 runs for the loss of seven wickets.

Ireland thrashes West Indies by four wickets

Ireland defeated the West Indies quite easily with three of their batsmen scoring half centuries. Ireland scored 307 runs for 6 wickets from 45.5 overs.

JOB INFORMATION

Leticia James Warns Consumers About Classified Ads
Toll numbers may be a direct line to trouble.

Classified ads are intended to help people by facilitating communication and advertising available services; however, some of the hotlines & service numbers in classifieds actually hurt the people who rely on them by cheating them of their hard-earned dollars. "Most newspapers print a disclaimer in their classified ad section to warn readers about numbers that are a direct line to trouble. Any number starting with 900, 540, 595 or 871 charges a fee beyond a local call. In some instances, ads initially advertise calls to a local number, but then direct callers to a second number starting with one of the paid exchanges. "Consumers must also question the legitimacy of vague classifieds because they too could be a scam. Before responding to an ad, consumers should verify the source of all information & always be wary about sending money or signing a contract with an unknown party."
