US-Guyana clean-up on track

By Bert Wilkinson

Frustrated by garbage pile-ups around the Guyana capital, flooded streets after normal levels of rainfall and a municipal system that barely works, the U.S. government has set-aside a grant to strengthen democracy at the local and grassroots levels, but Guyana authorities have all but stopped short of accusing Washington of moving to destabilize the administration, as the project finally got under way.

Guyana authorities had become suspicious of the U.S. motive after it offered a $1.5M grant to clean up the city, because the U.S. had dared to also include opposition parties and civic groups, to allow them to build local organizations that could run community affairs, rather than have political parties dominate the disbursement.

But once U.S. Ambassador Brent Hardt announced plans for the project, the administration of President Donald Ramotar raised spirited opposition to

TRINIDAD OIL-SPILL MYSTERY

Turns miles of beaches black

By Peter Richards

PORT OF SPAIN, Dec 23, 2013 (IPS) - Whether it is a case of sabotage or simply poor management practices by the state-owned PETROTRIN, as the union claims, a mysterious oil spill in south Trinidad is wreaking havoc on homes and wildlife in the area.

PETROTRIN claims it has no idea as to the source of the spills, and Energy Minister Kevin Ramnarine, who toured La Brea and other affected areas on Sunday, said "the mystery remains where this oil is coming from."

The Environmental Management Authority also said it had been unable to ascertain the source and that its immediate concern was the protection of life and the environment.

Gary About, president of Fishermen and Friends of the Sea, told IPS that the only solution was to shut down all oil production in the area.

"As we speak, more and more oil is being pumped into the sea. Why doesn't the minister order the shutdown of all oil being transported in the Gulf of Paria? Shut it down, if you don't know where it is coming from," he said. "We find it totally unbelievable."

According to the head of the La Brea Fisherfolk Association, Alvin La Borde, "[Local] fishermen cannot go out to work. They need to buy things for their families for Christmas. They would not be able to leave until this oil is cleared.

"The fishermen have also lost nets and ropes used to secure their boats," he told IPS.

In a statement, the EMA said it "will continue to closely monitor clean-up efforts and ensure that environmental best practices are carried out.

"Once the source of the spillage is determined, the EMA will be assessing the situation from a legal and compliance perspective to ascertain whether there is any breach in environmental legislation."

THE NEWS FROM BACK HOME

Caribbean

The United Nations says growth in the economies of Latin America and the Caribbean will pick up pace in 2014 on an improved global outlook that will help increase demand for exports.

The UN's regional economic body based in Chile said recently that Latin America's economy is set to grow by 3.2 per cent next year from a forecast of 2.6 per cent in 2013.

The agency says the growth estimate for 2013 was cut back from three per cent because of financial volatility and falling consumption. But a more favorable external environment will help boost demand for the region's exports. Brazil is seen growing at 2.6 per cent versus 2.4 per cent this year. Mexico is set to clock an expansion of 3.5 per cent, well above the 1.3 per cent seen for 2013.

Bahamas

The Bahamas National Security Minister Dr. Bernard J. Nottage says law enforcement officials are hoping for an "early resolution" in their investigations after armed bandits stormed the home of Acting Prime Minister Phillip 'Brave' Davis recently.

Nottage said that three bandits also robbed and assaulted Davis' chauffeur at gunpoint.

"I am happy to report that we have a break in the case and we expect to have an early resolution with the help of the public," he said, noting that the bandits led the chauffeur into the house where they subsequently accosted the minister and his wife "and robbed him of some money but did not assault them. "The bandits fled the scene in the silver Honda in which they arrived. It is suspected that the vehicle may have been stolen in a robbery, which took place in Western New Providence earlier," Nottage said, adding that the police were following significant leads which include the faces of at least one of the robbers and an image of the vehicle which was used.

the safety of the human papillomavirus vaccine (HPV) that will be administered to school children from January next year.

The Ministry of Health said it would be introducing the vaccine, which prevents cervical cancer, to 11 and 12 year-old secondary school girls.

Health Minister John Boyce said that the government's decision to introduce the vaccine was informed by research and "good clinical and medical practice.

"We will continue our program with interaction with the public, and with the parents especially, because this is a consent form arrangement.

"The idea is to get our parents on board in terms of participating in the discussion around this vaccine and the issues that may surround it. We know the successes of the human papillomavirus vaccine in respect of the control of cervical cancer in ladies and this is why we are launching the program and certainly we expect full participation when that time arrives in January," he added.

Manager of the Expanded Program on Immunization (EPI), Dr. Elizabeth Ferdinand, said that the first of these interactive discussions with parents will take the form of a town hall meeting on Dec. 18.

Grenada

The Grenada government says it is disappointed that Britain has not agreed to a reduction in the controversial Air Passenger Duty (APD) that Caribbean countries say puts them at a disadvantage and could destroy their vital tourism industry.

Tourism, Civil Aviation and Culture Minister Alexandra Otway-Noel said she was disappointed that British Chancellor of the Exchequer, George Osborne, in his Autumn Statement to Parliament recently, did not announce a reduction in the taxes at a time when tourist arrivals from the United Kingdom were on the decline. In his address, Osborne said the increase in the tax, which goes into effect from April 1, 2014, would increase the cost of medium and long-haul flights from Great Britain.

According to estimates, this essentially means that a family of four traveling economy to the United States will pay £276, up from £268, while the APD will move from £332 to £340 if they were travelling to the Caribbean. Moreover, those opting for premium economy, business, or first-class cabins, will be required to pay double the sum.

Noting that this is the sixth time there has been an increase in the APD, Otway-Noel said she was also disappointed that the decision to follow through with the tax increases was carried out in spite of the lobbying done by Caribbean tourism officials for the British to halt the APD augmentation.

Guyana

The Canada-based Guyana Goldfields says it is investing US$238 million in the Aurora Gold Project as the government said it was looking forward to large scale gold production by the company during the first quarter of 2015.

Prime Minister Samuel Hinds, welcoming the second largest investment in the mining sector, said as a country, "we have to open to the world...we have to partner with the world," particularly given the potential size of the multimillion-dollar investment.

Guyana Goldfields Inc. focuses on the exploration and development of gold deposits here and Hinds said that the experience, expertise and technologies which the investors were bringing into the country would have been difficult source locally.

"Our challenge is to develop partnerships with the world... we have to develop the ability to recognize who we could develop good partnerships with," he said, acknowledging that while the investment was "somewhat risky" he was looking forward to its success.

Natural Resources and Environment Minister Robert Persaud, who also supported the investment, said it would bring tremendous benefits to the Guyana.

He assured all stakeholders that Guyana Gold Fields (GGF) had undertaken a comprehensive environmental sensitivity index (ESI) and the necessary permits to ensure compliance with local laws and international best practices.

Guyana this year produced in excess of 452,000 ounces of gold surpassing the target of 451,000 ounces set and the 438,000 ounces declared in 2012.

Haiti

The U.S. Agency for International Development will shift from building houses to financing them for people displaced by the 2010 earthquake in Haiti, the agency's chief for the Caribbean nation said recently. Mission director John Groarke said the agency will try to help people build their own homes through mortgages.

"There was definitely a shift, because USAID began to realize that building houses here is very complicated," Groarke said in an interview with The Associated Press. "We feel that we can reach and help more people through creative financing."

An October report from the U.S. Government Accountability Office criticized the USAID effort to pro-

Tree lighting on Lenox Road

On Saturday, Dec. 14, 2013, the Lenox Road Block Association Alliance (LRBAA) hosted 'Lights on Lenox,' the first community holiday tree lighting on Lenox Road.

Although it snowed heavily it did not stop the LRBAA from staging the event for the approximately 50 community residents, who turned out to cheer and sing-along with youth performers of the Lenox Christian Youth Chorus. Turkeys, toys and holiday themed gift baskets were given out to those who braved the cold.

Before lighting the tree, which is on display into January 2014 on the premises of 270 Lenox Rd., the organizers took the opportunity to recognize some of its building caretakers/'supers' for an

SANDALS HOLIDAY TREAT FOR KIDS

Toy drive benefits thousands across Caribbean

MONTEGO BAY, JAMAICA (December 20, 2012) – The Sandals Foundation – the philanthropic arm of Sandals Resorts International – through its annual toy drive and holiday treats, made it a merry Christmas for 12,500 children this year across the Caribbean.

They were recipients of toys as part of the Sandals Foundation's annual toy drive, which took place this year under the theme "Share The Luck", where donors were asked to give $13 in 2013. The toy drive was made possible with online donations that were matched by Sandals Resorts International. Additionally, Hasbro, Inc., a valued partner of Beaches Resorts, donated a brand new toy or game as part of their $8,000 philanthropic contribution to the cause.

Founder and President of the Sandals Foundation's Board of Directors Adam Stewart said: "We are grateful to have a longstanding partner like Hasbro supporting this important initiative to support our local communities and give local children of the Caribbean a holiday season they deserve.

This was one of most successful toy drives to date and we could not have done it alone."

Meanwhile, 80 Christmas treats were held across the Caribbean many of which took place at children's homes, community centres and early childhood and primary schools in Jama-ca, St. Lucia, Antigua, the Bahamas, the Turks and Caicos Islands and for the first time, Grenada.

"The students had been anticipating their treat and were even more eager to see Santa Claus after they were told that the Sandals Foundation would be coming. It was a wonderful experience for them to get such lovely toys from Santa and to be on the receiving end of such excellent service from everyone," said Taniesha Poyser, principal of Beast Spring Early Childhood Institute. "I must admit that it was the perfect end to the school year for the infants."

Adios! to the last New York Black radio station

By Vinette K. Pryce

Once upon a time, Black radio listeners locked in 1600 -- the last frequency on the AM dial -- in order to hear music, news and the latest in cultural entertainment broadcasting from WWRL.

On Jan. 1, 2014, WWRL will transform the media landscape by providing the same service to a Latino audience and delivering the same cutting-edge programming to a Spanish-language audience.

Although no official announcement has been released, program hosts at the station said they were notified of the New Year programming conversion from English to Spanish.

Founded Aug. 26, 1926, the station has been steadily losing its appeal with target Black audiences due to the FM revolution, the emergence of numerous Black-oriented outlets and the departure of personalities who provided unique programming.

Frankie Crocker, Hank Spann, Douglas "Jocko" Henderson, Gerry Bledsoe, Bobby Jay, E. Hawthorne Gregory, Gary Byrd and Jeff Troy were celebrated names to broadcast from the flagship station.

"They played a blend of Motown, Stax and Memphis and early James Brown-styled funk. In the 1960's WWRL became the principal rhythm and blues radio station "focusing on popular music aimed at the young Black community. The station was owned during this period by Sonderling Broadcasting. In the 1970s WWRL stressed Philadelphia soul and other and soul artists.

In 1979 Sonderling merged with Viacom.

At night Bob Law commanded a curious audience who tuned in to listen to his "Night Talk."

According to Wikipedia, com "by 1999, WWRL began mixing in paid programming during the week," and "by 2001, the station evolved into a diversified station selling blocks of time to various interests."

SPIRITED AND UPBEAT KWANZAA CELEBRATION

By Amun

On Saturday, Dec. 14 New Jersey Performing Arts Center (NJPAC) held its all-day Kwanzaa Celebration. The program consisted of a Children's Festival, a Kwanzaa Market Place, a Tribute to the Elders with a full Kwanzaa mazaio buffet spread for all to partake, and a performance by Forces of Nature Dance Theatre.

In spite of the horrendous weather, the event was well attended and the spirit was upbeat. The Children's Festival included craft workshops, dancing, drumming and singing. The Elders Tribute began with a procession led by the drummer, with elders following into the Chase Room where the tribute was held.

Baba Chuck Davis, founder and artistic director of DanceAfrica, who had just returned from Santiago, Cuba led the elders into the room and to their seats at the head table. Could that mean that the Cuban Folkloric Dance Company will headline "DanceAfrica 2014?" I'm just speculating.

Forces of Nature Dance Theatre did two performances of the program entitled, "A Kwanzaa Celebration." The last performance began with The Procession of Elders. After they were seated, Olabamidele Husbands, co-founder, CEO and company manager of Forces of Nature proceeded with the traditional pouring of the libation and talking about the seven principles of Kwanzaa, the Nguzo Saba. Then the dance began.

Forces of Nature is a very dramatic and accomplished company, and they performed the Artistic Director, Abdul Salaam's choreography exquisitely. The dance was in five parts: "Rhythm Legacy," "Continental Drift," "Grey Flannel Matter," "Club Legacy" and "A Question of Modesty." The concert was a history lesson executed in rhythm and movement.

On Sunday there was another program of holiday celebration. Sinbad and Mary Mary presented a Gospel and Comedy Celebration. Sinbad preceded Mary Mary with topical humor and tongue and cheek advice to parents on raising their teenage children.

He even put out a call to Kanye West, asking him to come home and get back to himself. He added that, if its big butts that intrigue him, he needs to come to Newark and walk with him down Market Street, plenty, plenty there!

Mary Mary, Erica Atkins-Campbell and her sister

Tina Atkins-Campbell delivered a soul stirring faith-based inspirational show, celebrating self-reliance and upliftment. Those sisters can really sing. They set a high bar as they sang, strutted "their stuff" around the stage and reached out to the audience. The audience wasn't half-steppin' either. They were the choir. They knew the lyrics and sang them with joy and feeling. The call and response was in full effect as they joined Erica and Tina in singing, "Get Up," "Heaven," "Go Get It," "Walking," "Yesterday," "Can't Give Up," "Something Big," "Little More Jesus," and more. There was dancing singing, hand clappin' and toe tappin' going on. They were holding church up in there!

NJPAC is located in Newark at One Center Street. For information on future programs check their website: www.njpac.org or call 973-642-8989.

Trinidad's steps up fight against crime

By Azad Ali

Over the weekend, National Security Minister Gary Griffith said the authorities would soon launch a major crime fighting initiative.

Griffith said that the Virtual Police Officers (VIPO) will when launched make every law abiding citizen a virtual police officer.

"In this way you can go on a secure website and report a crime which may be about to be committed or has been committed," Griffith said, adding he would be personally held responsible to ensure the confidentiality of the informants remained secure.

"VIPO will fall directly under me so that people will feel safe to report information that can be turned into evidence," he said, sending a message to rogue elements within the police.

"We are putting special mechanisms to weed out rogue elements in the Police Service and give citizens responsibility to become virtual officers on cyberspace. It is no secret that there are police officers on the payroll of gang members, and once we find the evidence to remove them, they will be removed," he added.

Acting Police Commissioner Stephen Williams said it was not fair to judge the police merely on the number of murders solved.

"The Police Service should be judged on all that it has the responsibility to address, and it's not supposed to be judged on one issue, that of murders," Williams told the Trinidad Express newspaper.

He said in 2013, the police have seen the "phenomenal results" of a 33 per cent reduction in violent crime, surpassing its goal of an 18 per cent reduction.

Murder is murder and every single one is painful and traumatic to us.

"In the 2013 budget, the mandate to the TTPS (Trinidad and Tobago Police Service) was to reduce violent crimes by 50 per cent over three years. We have already achieved 33 per cent reduction in violent crimes in one year. I'm not hearing anyone saying anything about that.

"Anywhere else people will say that's a phenomenon. All I'm hearing is one discussion: murder... We are seeing abnormal—I mean positive abnormal results. We set ourselves an 18 per cent reduction in serious crime in 2013. We have achieved 30 per cent," he said.

"Murders that is the only category of offences that has defied the Police Service in

How To Avoid Risky Back Surgery With A Breakthrough Non Surgical Treatment And Get Out Of Pain Fast

Here's how the newest breakthrough non-surgical back pain and sciatica treatment may end your pain and solve your herniated, bulging or degenerated disc pain problems...

You may be thinking "What IS going to happen to me if I can't find a solution to my back pain or leg pain?" The answer to your question starts out hopeful. I'll just go to my doctor and he will take care of me. He will know what to do. But then something very odd happens to you. You discover your primary care physician is not really well equipped to handle that job. He or she is very busy treating infections, diabetes, heart conditions and the like, which they are very well equipped to handle. This is very apparent with your resulting drug prescription for Soma muscle relaxers and Norco, Neurontin or any other of the various prescribed pain medications. You then take the drugs soon to feel strangely like you're not altogether "there" or you immediately are sick, feel nausea and vomit the drugs as fast as you swallowed them. When you get sick of that (pardon the pun! I couldn't resist), you go back to your doctor looking for another more appealing treatment. This time it's physical therapy. The thing you already can't do!! You already can't bend over, twist, lift things, and now they want you to do more of it with a bunch of other back pain sufferers! Gimme a break. Now, you've really had it. You try the chiropractor and either you feel better for a little while only to have the pain return, or worse nothing happens at all. Or even worse than that, after your treatment you have MORE pain (not because chiropractic does not work..your condition is just too deteriorated or severe). Then you try acupuncture because you read in a magazine it could help pain. You then realize sticking a bunch of needles in you will not magically remove the bulging disc that is smashing your nerve and causing you pain. You try massage as you read on the internet massage may help alleviate back pain...only to be disappointed. You're now beginning to feel desperate. Back to your primary care doctor to tell him about your adventures hoping he will have a different answer this time. He does.

"We can inject pain drugs through a big needle into your spine." You cringe in fear and reluctantly agree at this point. "NOW I will be fixed." Or at least that's what you've been led to believe. You have either no pain relief, some pain relief, a whole lot of pain relief or it makes you have more pain. The second pain shot (oh, yes there will be a second and a third) is usually less effective or not at all and requires another one. You come to the realization that pain shots will not fix the disc bulge or herniation still smashing your delicate nerves causing you pain. Finally, your doctor recommends you see a "Specialist" (Back Surgeon) and he can do risky surgery. If you've read the latest article in the Journal Of American Medical Association*, you will see surgery patients and non surgery patients turned out the same! Why even do the surgery? Risk of paralysis, death, infections, more pain. No thanks. So. Back to the question. What are YOU going to do if you are stuck between serious back pain or leg pain or surgery? Great News! A new extremely effective non surgical new back pain treatment is now available in Brooklyn. If you are suffering from back pain or leg pain, having pain at the belt line, fire down your legs, numb legs, feet or toes or feel like a knife is stuck in your back you owe to yourself to check out this new procedure.

Finally, Some Good News! If you've been suffering with back pain or arm/leg pain caused by a disc bulge, disc herniation or squashed or compressed discs.

My name is Dr. Melinda Keller and I've successfully treated hundreds of patients with spinal decompression so there's no reason your back problem should be any different.

In fact, I'm so confident we can help you, I'm willing to back it up...but not with empty promises.

I GUARANTEE you will only be accepted into our program IF YOU QUALIFY for the treatment AFTER having THE MOST THOROUGH AND COMPREHENSIVE ASSESSMENT YOU HAVE EVER HAD or I will buy you lunch! (I haven't bought one yet!)

Yes! I am very confident, but I can't help EVERYBODY. You see, there's a very small percentage of folks we can't help. Here's what a couple applicants said after I told them both I couldn't help them:

"I was treated very well by the staff. The doctors actually listened to me and I thought they would rush me out of the office but didn't, despite the fact I wasn't a candidate. The exam I had was very thorough, more so than any doctor I have seen yet. The doctor explained things to me that no one else ever has."
Non-Candidate
Brooklyn, NY

"Meeting with the doctor, we discussed and viewed if I was truly a candidate for the treatment. The doctor let me know I was not a candidate but did leave the door open for me to seek her services in the future if I thought I needed her services."

Expires December 30, 2009

Just read what a few of our patients that have been through the procedure had to say:

"I suffered with lower back pain and leg pain for 2 years. I tried physical therapy, acupuncture, spinal injections but none of it worked. After receiving spinal decompression treatment, my pain has been totally eliminated and I can now walk much better."

Lincoln Leung
Brooklyn, NY

I felt like a truck ran over me. I was in such pain it was unbelievable. I gotta tell you, so far I've had 7 or 8 treatments, and I feel 100% better. I live always away but worth every mile to come here."

Fabienne Alexander - Retired
Brooklyn, NY

I saw several different doctors, medical doctors, chiropractors and other various treatments with no results. I had a couple bad discs. I immediately started feeling much, much better and the back pain decreased. At the end of my treatments my pain is almost non-existent."

Burt McIvain
Brooklyn, NY

"After reading the full page article in the paper, I was skeptical of the positive results of a treatment for degenerative disc that might show pain relief. My wife and I decided to make an appointment for the no charge (nothing to lose) 17 point evaluation. Guess What! Following only my third treatment, I was virtually pain free. I cannot thank the doctor and her staff enough as I am pain free!"

Brooklyn at the Helm!

By Sidney McKenzie

Brooklyn now becomes the center of African American politicians replacing the old guards of Harlem's Gang of Four after the late Adam Powell. From the late Percy Sutton to the remaining trio of State Supreme Court Judge Basil Patterson, former and first black New York City Mayor David Dinkins and dean of the New York's congressional delegation Charlie Rangel. With combined years of more than two hundred their life services should now become one for the history books. Through them; multitudes of blacks involved themselves in politics to make a difference for their community. Their foresight of a better New York for blacks didn't only inspire African Americans in the city to vote and be a part of the process but blacks coming to live in the city, including the Caribbean's late trailblazer Shirley Chisholm.

The general election of 2013 delivers such political baton to cross the bridges into Brooklyn. With Blacks in the borough voting overwhelmingly and liberal whites joining in to stop the tales of two cities, and the controversial continuation of stop and frisk, Brooklyn delivers its first African American top cop in the borough in Ken Thompson after more than two decades of Charles Hinds. Then with term limits, Mr. Brooklyn himself; Marty Markowitz Brooklyn Borough President seat became occupied by retired cop now politician Eric Adams. For the second time in modern time Brooklyn deliver a mayor for the City, Bill de Blasio and his wife first lady Chirlane. From 35th Council District and holding the city's second highest elected office is Public Advocate Letitia James, representing the most populous Borough, Brooklyn. Brooklyn the largest of the five boroughs holds the highest amount of congressional elected official's along with the senior senator.

Now with a new administration taking over the city, minority that went to the polls with the intention of diminishing "Stop and Frisk" especially in Brooklyn may have their wishes answered. As for the liberal whites and wealthy residence across the city and in Brooklyn who had become exasperated with "Tales of Two Cities" paying their fair share of taxes may be just what they wanted in order to build a more balance New York.

The Bedford Academy

To The Editor:

Founder & former principal of Bedford Academy George E. Leonard congratulates Bedford Academy for its continued success. On Dec. 3, Mayor Michael Bloomberg visited Bedford Academy and praised the Bedford Model.

Bloomberg candidly stated, "We've shown how you can improve a major, large system with all of attributes and disadvantages and resources and problems any other city has." He went on to say, "A bigger pool should, we think, mean lower scores, but it didn't because it shows that we're doing something right," shining light on the in place structures implemented by Leonard, and continued by current principal Muhammad.

In 2007 under the leadership of George E. Leonard the first graduating class of Bedford Academy completed the full four-year program with extraordinary results: a 98% graduation rate, 90%+ attendance rate, each class member was accepted by at least two colleges, acceptances to successful pre-med, pre-law and Ivy League programs and out performing some of NYC's "specialized" high schools.

New York State Regent Dr. Adelaide Sanford at a City Council gathering honoring Bedford Academy acknowledged, "Bedford Academy under the leadership of Mr. Leonard and his staff has once again put to rest any question about our children's capacity and the ability of strong leadership to fulfill the promise of our ancestors."

As Leonard puts it, "The Bedford approach got its start in the 1980's when he utilized a spectrum of personal insights – from his own NYC public schools experience as a student to his expertise as President and CEO of World Institute of Science and Technology – summarily creating an advanced science program which allowed typical grade-school children to pass the New York Regents science exam normally given to 9th-graders."

The New York Times even highlighted Bedford Academy's success where, "63 percent of the students qualify for a free lunch, a majority are being raised by a single mother ... yet close to 95 percent of students graduate." The New York Daily News also pointed out that, "Bedford Academy in Brooklyn, where roughly 90% of students earn a more rigorous Regents diploma in four years, have 84 percent and 100 percent black students respectively."

After Leonard's departure from Bedford Academy in 2007 he was still available as an advisor / consultant to insure a smooth transition and continuity. His results were so successful that he and his class were profiled in a PBS special. Currently he is Chief Executive Officer of Friends of Bedford, "an educational consultancy that reaches the hearts and minds of inner-city students" via the Bedford Approach.

Former DC Schools Chancellor Michelle A. Rhee hailed Leonard's genius bringing him and his team to DC to effect change in her school system. Once in Washington, Leonard "provided intensive volunteer tutoring after school and worked hard to make sure students took advantage of it. The team hired and trained teachers carefully. It sought the safe and orderly school environment that brought success to the small public Bedford Academy, the school it created in Brooklyn that initially caught Rhee's eye," as reported by V. Dion Haynes of

The Washington Post.

It made perfect sense to such a master of education that the Bedford Project would be born to replicate the success of Bedford Academy on a national level. "All of the instructional methodologies, strategies and most importantly, the leadership of Bedford Academy are present at the Bedford Project." Washington DC schools experienced unprecedented success after the first year, but despite the efficacy of the Bedford Approach in DC schools, The Friends of Bedford were forced out due to changes in political leadership. Michelle A. Rhee speaks highly of Leonard's Friends of Bedford, and thanks him and his team in her latest book entitled "The Bee Eater-Michelle Rhee Takes On The Nation's Worst Schools," by Richard Whitmire.

Leonard stands on his belief, "To teach students, educators must first reach students – inspire them to care, help them set goals and provide the support they need to get there. That's how Friends of Bedford helps at-risk students." For this is his vision.

He is known to go above and beyond using effective unconventional strategies to achieve extraordinary educational results for underserved children in schools such as Brownsville Mott Hall Bridges Academy where the students achieved great end results using The Bedford Approach, however Friends of Bedford received unsubstantiated and unjustified criticism from a select few within The Department of Education and questionable websites like dnainfo.com.

With such high exacting standards, impeccable credentials, a long track record of success and innovative approach to education, it's no wonder why George E. Leonard would be an obvious prime "short list" contributor for new wave educational initiatives.

Sincerely,
Tachelle Wilkes

Proud to be anti-government crusaders

There appears to be enough of a consensus built for referring to the more reactionary, obstructionist element among Republican members of Congress as “anti-government.” This is a tag that one would imagine confounding the Dickens out of any unsuspecting observer. But for those of us familiar with the jaw-dropping combat positions some of today’s gladiators have staked out for themselves, we’re probably immune to the incredulity of a crusade founded on de-legitimizing the institution of government. We’re very aware that there is indeed such an animal within the bowels of the GOP, and that its adherents wear the “anti-government” label like some red badge of courage.

For starters, we probably should give these folks the benefit of the doubt and assume that although committed to this anti-government cause, their presence in government is explained by the desire to effect a dismantling of government (a whole chunk of it, at least) from within. Hence the presence in the Senate of the likes of Rand Paul and Ted Cruz, and in the House, a slew of Tea Party partisans, all of them rabidly loyal to the “government is the problem” mantra Ronald Reagan introduced for his brand of populist revolt decades ago.

There’s a lot ascribed to Reagan that pokes holes in the contention of some commentators, not all of them necessarily on the right, who assign to him a premium ranking among presidents that’s very much open to question. That’s another forum, but the anti-government push of which he was prime instigator is certainly one of those none too flattering constituents of the Reagan legacy.

Especially given the reckless disregard for the sanctity of governance we’ve seen of late, one begins to see how there could be a mindset developed which dismisses outright the notion of government as central to the society-building apparatus. When some of the players involved in shutting down the government prattle on glibly about allowing the shutdown to endure indefinitely, it’s clear that purveyors of such tripe are seamlessly wedded to a comfort zone in denial about the role of government at society’s core.

Strictly speaking, it’s not that these would be insurgents acknowledge no role whatsoever for some “government” facsimile. It is that they are prepared to ride the “get government off our backs” rally cry to such ludicrous extremes, their re-design of government would leave the bulk of the population up a creek and paddle-less. Government is for arming the state to the teeth to protect against invasion and for invading when there’s that urge. Not surprisingly, government is for allowing the citizenry to also arm itself silly. Government is not for taxing the people and if it must, do so sparingly; and absolutely have no designs on the well-to-do paying a fair share. Government is not for regulating business in any way; “free enterprise” means those who engage in business have earned themselves an unimpeded path. Government has no business concerning itself about income inequality having reached alarming proportions. Etc, etc.

Viewpoint

By Les Slater

In the view of the anti-government crusaders, it is not government’s call to show concern for those who find themselves left behind, economically. So that Lyndon Johnson’s introduction of Medicare was a major misstep in the American narrative. As was Franklin Roosevelt’s introduction of Social Security. Movement standard bearer Rand Paul sounded off on the uproar over last week’s budget deal not including an extension of jobless benefits for the long-term unemployed; he supports unemployment benefits for 26 weeks; to pay benefits beyond that is to encourage the unemployed to remain unemployed!

One good thing about comments like Paul’s unconscionable dismissal of folks about to be thrown into desperate straits, is that sentiment in the camp of those endorsing state indifference as exemplified by Paul tends now not to be camouflaged. Time was that such indicators of assault on working class folk would perhaps not be given that sort of in-your-face prominence, more likely hidden behind the full-court press mounted to woo the gullible with tried and true social conservative carrots like abortion, gay rights, immigration and the rest. The movement today to stand on a platform of fiscal conservatism even to an extent potentially of throwing most Americans under the bus bespeaks a tightened-jaw level of unconcern for the working class and middle class.

We cannot but reference yet again Mitt Romney’s famous “47 percent” comment. Romney, being as unabashedly lacking in conviction as he showed, numbering him with the anti-government lot wouldn’t be smart. But his hoof-in-mouth “47 percent” spiel to those high-rolling Republican sympathizers would seem pretty close to what one might presume to be a strategy plank of anti-government advocates... although we suspect that the 47 percent of voters that Romney wrote off needs to be ratched up some. The right flank players championing this idea of government abdicating a substantial portion of its customary role know full well that massive pushback is assured from folks taking it on the chin. And they happen to be most Americans.

Deficit reduction at the federal level is an objective we all, regardless of political persuasion, need support. But using the deficit as rationale for insensitively going the other way is the kind of ploy from the usual suspects with which by now we’re quite familiar. Government may not be the paramount solution. But there’s still every reason to think of government as much more solution than problem.

TRIBUTE TO BILL DE BLASIO

(Stop living a tale of two Cities)

The 109th Mayor of the City of New York

New York Arise!

Out of our history of 1665
New Yorkers fought against the odds and survived
Out of the clutches of 1884 to the dawn of a new day we come
Strong, resilient and free, yet compassionate we come
We are New Yorkers; as one people we come Out of this probability, a man with dreams and vision came
For our children's sake, stop the shame!
New York Arise! Stop living a tale of two Cities.
This City I love must cut the fear
Listen to the call of the drum! Listen to the call of the drum!
Throughout the clash of fate
And the destiny it makes
Through it all, BDB's message was clear
We are living a tale of two cities; cut the fear
I believe the children are the future
Early childhood education is the key – come change the culture
Education is the key to unlock all doors to the future.

New York Arise! Stop living a tale of two Cities.
This City I love must cut the fear
Listen to the call of the drum! Listen to the call of the drum!
Like the certainty of day
Like sun and like moon, he brightens the way
Ride the pebbles of fate, transcending the vision it makes Nations awake! Nations awake! New York Arise! New York Arise!
Astride the sky, soar over the lofty heights as you rise, as you rise, as you rise
As we reflect and internalize, In poetry let me sermonize
New York Arise! Stop living a tale of two Cities.
This City I love must cut the fear
Listen to the call of the drum! Listen to the call of the drum!
–Poem by James C. Richmond

vide housing as part of the Caracol Industrial Park, which is the United States' biggest investment in Haiti since the quake destroyed thousands of homes and displaced 1.5 million people.

The number of people still living in grim encampments of quake survivors is now at 170,000, the International Organization for Migration says. Many Haitians left the camps not because new housing became available but because they received rental subsidies or were evicted by landowners.

As investigations continue into the discovery of a machine used to make and reload ammunition, the police are reporting the shipment originated in Florida. Recently, police and customs officials discovered 3,300 warheads and the machine in a barrel on the wharf. Other items were also recovered which can be put together to make a round of ammunition.

The communications arm of the police force—the Constabulary Communications Network (CCN) reports that customs agents were carrying out routine checks when they became suspicious of a barrel and called the police who made the discovery.

The police with the assistance of overseas law enforcement agencies, have since established that the shipment originated in Florida.

A statement from the CCN said local detectives continue to work closely with their international partners to gather more information on the case.

St. Kitts

The governments of St. Kitts-Nevis and the Republic of China (Taiwan) have renewed an agreement of technical cooperation in agriculture for another five years. Minister of Agriculture and Cooperatives Nigel Carty and Taiwanese Resident Ambassador Miguel Tsao signed the agreement recently in the presence of members of the Taiwanese Technical Mission and officials from the Ministry of Agriculture.

Ambassador Tsao said the agreement was significant for both countries and would provide a solid foundation for future cooperation.

"It will be a milestone for remaking our new round of cooperation in the future. I would like to pledge my unwavering and unshakable commitment to work closely with the Ministry of Agriculture to benefit all the farmers," he said.

Minister Carty pointed out the history of cooperation the Federation has enjoyed with the government of Taiwan shortly after its Independence in 1983 "on many subject matters." He said the expertise and assistance from the Taiwanese have helped the nation in its efforts to ensure food security.

Trinidad & Tobago oil contamination

Parliament for the La Brea region, which is known for having the largest natural deposit of asphalt in the world, told IPS that he is hoping the evacuation is carried out “as quickly as possible”.

“There are young people and it is difficult for them to breathe...and as much as 24 families are directly affected. In addition, there are fishing vessels contaminated with oil. We are seeing crabs and dead fish along the beach.

“Yesterday I was down there and there is a very strong gas scent and people have been advised not to do any cooking in the area,” he added.

On Monday, the environmental group Papa Bois Conservation issued an urgent appeal for paper towels, dishwashing liquid and other supplies to aid birds that are covered in oil.

The Wildlife Orphanage and Rehabilitation Centre (WORC), which is also trying to rescue animals affected by the oil spill, reports “oil in the mangrove as well as a strong hydrocarbon smell”. The WORC also posted on its website a picture of an oil-slicked dead pelican at La Brea.

PETROTRIN, which has been in operation for 100 years, has acknowledged that there are installations across the country engaged in refinery activities and that some of its pipelines may still contain hydrocarbons that can be hazardous to health.

Ramnarine said the authorities were now seeking international assistance in dealing with the oil spill, even as the Oilfield Workers Trade Union (OWTU) maintained that PETROTRIN should shoulder the blame for the environmental disaster.

“We do not concur with the company’s offering of the excuse that it is some kind of sabotage or otherwise,” OWTU president general Ancel Roget told a news conference on Sunday.

“We want to say there is a massive cover-up of the PETROTRIN management to shield their friends, the lease operators, who they invited to and in fact gave away some of the lucrative acreage of PETROTRIN assets, and therefore a cloud of silence and secrecy has shrouded the lease operators in the La Brea situation,” he said.

Roget has accused the company of knowingly reducing the level of security in the fields, allowing thieves to roam freely.

“The reduction and removal of morning tower shifts...these shifts provided as a monitoring effort and additional security effort so that if there are any oil spills throughout fields they were reported in real time.”

Roget said PETROTRIN had no emergency response contract to deal with the latest series of oil spills, saying “they violate their own investigation policy which states that investigations of that nature ought to take place within the first 24 hours.”

But Ramnarine said that unmanned platforms were part of the industry globally.

“We can’t put people on every single platform,” he said, adding “in the Gulf of Mexico, there are unmanned platforms.”

Over the weekend, PETROTRIN’s president Khalid Hassana-li said one of the company’s lease operators, Trinity Oil and Gas, had discovered several valves open at its operations in Rancho Quemado, allowing oil to flow out of the tanks onto the lands.

Guyana clean-up

it, saying it was allowed no input into how the funds were to be disbursed and wanted absolutely no part in its implementation.

Ramotar’s governing People’s Progressive Party (PPP) and Washington have had a long and bitter history of political engagement dating back to the CIA’s well-publicized involvement in Guyana in the ‘60’s when it had successfully destabilized the then left-leaning PPP administration.

Race riots at the time claimed the lives of more than 150 people; large parts of the capital were destroyed by fire and civil service strikes brought life to a standstill. So any move today by the U.S. to involve itself openly in local politics was quickly seen as an effort to once again destabilize a still-paranoid PPP.

In the past week, the level of suspicion and distrust between the two sides boiled over into an interesting exchange between Amb. Hardt and the Guyana governing party.

Cabinet Secretary Roger Luncheon had said that government had rejected the project out of hand because it was presented to them as a done deal and they were only asked to sign on the dotted lines.

“Cabinet had no option but to pull the plug,” said Luncheon, calling the U.S.’ actions “grievous.”

Hardt said there was no such thing as an offer and the understanding was that whether government got involved or not, the (project) was going ahead as planned.

“The project contractor is on the ground. We will engage with those stakeholders who wish to engage. We will continue to work in that spirit. We hope government will find a way to work with us. We have had over one dozen meetings. From the onset of this proposal, we have worked diligently to involve the government and have been working to get the government’s input on this project.”

Hardt and other Western ambassadors are concerned that no local elections for the city and five towns have been held since 1994; that the system is completely broken down and needs reinvigorating with fresh polls. The US envoys had even led garbage clean-up campaigns in the city to make the point.

New adult day-care services in Flatbush

By Lin-Jay Harry-Voglezon

Another care-giving center has opened in Flatbush.

Renaissance Adult Day Services opened doors on Thursday, Dec. 12 at 2625 Bedford Ave. (at Flatbush Avenue), with four hours of activity as it introduced its services to the community.

In association with the Gay Men of African Descent and the Good Dog Foundation as community volunteers, the center promises “a fresh approach to adult day services.” Its doors are open to all: “gay, straight, handicapped. Gender, race/ethnicity does not matter. The services are tailored to suit the cultural diversity of the community,” said Project Manager Christian Santos. Although Renaissance is a for-profit organization,” he says, “it is driven by a commitment to the much-needed quality health care without discrimination.

Its president, Alexander C. Markowitz opened doors on Thursday, Dec. 12 and his culturally diverse leadership team are healthcare providers with over 10 years’ experience in the business.

They started as a licensed home care agency in Coney Island, serving the five New York City boroughs. Two years ago, they opened a branch in the Bronx at 625 East Fordham Road, and in September last year they added the social services, adult day-care dimension which is scheduled to open shortly at 787 E. 156th St.

Renaissance offers holistic care whether it’s for three hours or 24 hours, in or out of the home, by a Caregiver or Care Nurse. Services are custom-designed to serve different levels of need and cultural patterns. Caregiving services range from escorting clients to laundry, cooking, and cosmetic services, as well as personal assistance with “feeding, bathroom and incontinence, grooming, mobility, dressing, medication reminders and bathing.”

The agency also offers a multilingual, professionally-trained team with a broad range of skills and in pediatric care, wound care and medication management, physical, occupational and respiratory therapy, language and speech pathology, nutrition and social services.

The spacious Flatbush center can accommodate a range of recreational activities, exercise programs, including karaoke and socialization to benefit the body, mind and spirit. There’s a coffee- and juice bar, Skype room, and two medical rooms. What distinguishes it most is the provision of pet therapy, Wi-Fi and Skype accessibility for members to connect to friends and family around the world, the management claims.

Renaissance membership is open to clients enrolled in or eligible for Managed Long Term Care, Medicare or Medicaid, or require or qualify for Home Care.

Agencies represented at the open-house included AARP, Alzheimer’s Association, Patty Cake Theatre, Al Medina Pharmacy, Ella Dekhtyar and I Freyberg DDS PC, So-Fine Troopers Fitness Training, Church of God, and DJ Luko, all vendors.

Plan to end Carib hunger

By Nelson A. King

The United Nations' Food and Agriculture Organization (FAO) says a group of South American and Caribbean countries have adopted a common plan of action to eradicate hunger and poverty, designed with FAO support.

The FAO says the agreement was announced during the Second Extraordinary Summit of the Petrocaribe oil bloc and the Bolivarian Alliance for the Peoples of Our America - Peoples' Trade Treaty (ALBA-TCP).

"The plan aims to strengthen food and nutrition security in the Petrocaribe economic zone and in ALBA countries through national and regional hunger eradication projects," said the FAO, adding that it will provide advice to governments in developing interventions.

During the summit, Venezuela President Nicolas Maduro said that "the Action Plan ALBA-Petrocaribe to free our territories from hunger seems fundamental for the future."

The FAO said the plan reflects the priority that hunger reduction has been given by the Community of Latin American and Caribbean States (CELAC) and under the Hunger-Free Latin America and the Caribbean Initiative, a commitment by the 33 countries of the region to eradicate malnutrition by 2025.

"The ALBA-Petrocaribe Action Plan represents the most ambitious attempt to eradicate hunger in the history of the region," the FAO said.

"Latin America and the Caribbean are showing that across the entire region there is political will for and commitment to achieving hunger eradication," said FAO director-general José Graziano da Silva, speaking at the summit.

Filing for your parents

By Gertude Onuoha Esq.

As a U.S. citizen who is at least 21 years old, you can petition for your parents (mother or father) to live in the United States as green card holders. To petition for your parents (mother or father), you will file the following documents with United States Citizen and Immigration Services:

- A completed and signed Form I-130.
- A copy of your Certificate of Naturalization or U.S. passport if you were not born in the United States.
- A copy of your birth certificate showing your name and the names of both parents.
- A copy of your Certificate of Naturalization or Citizenship or U.S. passport if you were not born in the United States.
- A copy of your parents' civil marriage certificate.

If you are an adopted child, you will need a certified copy of the adoption certificate showing that the adoption took place before your 16th birthday. When USCIS approves the application, it will send you a notice and then forward the case to the National Visa Center (NVC) for further processing, if your beneficiary parent is residing abroad. Your will parent(s) will be required to provide more documentation, attend medical examination. Thereafter, they will attend an interview at the U.S. consulate in your country. A visa will be issued if the interview goes well. They will receive a passport stamp upon arrival in the United States. This stamp will prove that they are allowed to work in the United States until their Permanent Resident Card is received.

If your parent is currently in the United States, he or she may be eligible to file Form I-485, Application to Register Permanent Residence or to Adjust Status, at the same time as you file Form I-130. They are eligible to apply for employment and travel authorization while their case is pending. Some common problems associated with parental filings are incomplete application / petition, illegal entry, missing I-94 cards criminal issues and fake documentation. Under certain circumstances, some of the problems can be addressed.

Taste test stymies climate-resistant crops

By Jewel Fraser

CARONI, Trinidad, Dec 22, 2013 (IPS) - Ramdeo Boondoo, a root crop farmer in Caroni, Trinidad, understands better than most the challenge of developing crops that are both climate resilient and marketable.

"It is the eye that buys, not the money," Boondoo said. Crops must be able to resist effects of climate change while looking and tasting as good as their traditional counterparts. But such produce requires decades of experimentation, which researchers in the Trinidad are beginning to undertake.

"It is very rare that you will get [a genetically altered] crop that is as good as any of the parents" from which the new variety is made, said Herman Adams, a consultant at the Trinidad-based Caribbean Agricultural Research and Development Institute (CARDI).

Popular varieties of crops were developed over the centuries by people cutting slips of old varieties that they enjoyed and then growing them as clones in a process known as vegetative reproduction, according to Adams.

Developing climate-resilient crops, however, requires sexual reproduction - combining one climate-resilient crop with another variety, which has a preferable taste or shape, to produce a new variety.

"It takes over 20 years of selection and cross-pollinating to get the right organoleptic qualities, including taste, which is hard to recapture," Adams said. Organoleptic qualities are those affecting the senses.

He explained that sexual reproduction disrupts the parental genetic combination that gives the traditional varieties their appealing taste.

Boondoo has been working on developing a sweet potato that combines the climate-resilient qualities of the traditional "chicken foot" variety popular in Trinidad with the uniform shape of the American Centennial sweet potato.

The chicken foot sweet potato is the most resilient, according to Boondoo. "It withstands drought and damp conditions," he said. "But...they do not carry a uniform shape or size."

Manufacturers of agro-products, such as chips and flour made of cassava or plantain, want crops that are not just uniform in taste but also in shape, to make mechanical processing easier. The American Centennial variety has a uniform shape but does not appeal to locals who are accustomed to sweet potatoes with a firmer consistency.

If Boondoo can develop a sweet potato with the traits of both the chicken foot and the American Centennial, he will be better able to supply food processors while also giving local consumers more variety, and his crop losses due to floods or droughts would be greatly reduced.

Chairperson of the Tobago Agro Processors Association, Darilyn Smart, also emphasised that "uniformity is key for the export, hotel and restaurant sectors."

"In order to export to the EU, produce must meet requirements in terms of size, shape, degree of ripeness, and so on," Smart told IPS. "For the hotels and restaurants it is also important that we provide consistent products, especially if they are being used on the buffet table."

Producing new varieties of crops that meet these exacting standards is "a long process", according to Adams. It involves cross-pollination of the plant, first on a small scale, and then, depending on the initial outcome, large-scale field trials are conducted.

Another objective of these trials is also to produce "high-yielding, competitively priced products," Boondoo said.

CARDI is working with farmers on these field trials to identify climate-resilient varieties that will also fare well on the market. The institute's assistance includes training in good agricultural practices, said Dr. Janet Lawrence, an entomologist and programme leader for protected agriculture at CARDI.

"When you create a good environment through [good agricultural practices], then varieties can show their true genetic potential," Adams explained. Those varieties that show the greatest promise are then used for the field trials.

Smart told the IPS that the Tobago Agro Processors Association will soon be introducing its own pilot project to "ensure crops are uniform, consistent, and disease free, as much as possible."

Guyana seeks help to protect its parks

GEORGETOWN, Guyana (AP) — Guyana is seeking help from experts in Florida to help the South American country properly manage and develop its vast system of national parks.

Environment Minister Robert Persaud said Saturday that he has held meetings with officials at the South Florida National Parks Trust.

Persaud said Guyana also wants to improve its environmental education campaigns and revise its policies to better protect and develop natural resources.

Protected areas in Guyana include Kaieteur Falls, a scenic waterfall in the country's central region that measures about 741 feet (226 meters).

DR act reeks of ethnic cleansing

Author condemns “racist” law against Black citizens

GREAT BAY/MARIGOT, St. Martin (Dec. 8, 2013)—St. Martin author Lasana M. Sekou has called on Prime Minister Sarah Wescot-Williams and President Aline Hanson, to “officially and publicly condemn the Dominican Republic Constitutional Court decision of September 13, 2013 (Sentencia TC/0168/13), which threatens to strip the citizenship status from at least a quarter of a million of its citizens, leaving them stateless based on the color of their skin—as Black men, women, and children—and their heritage origins.”

In the letter of Nov. 22 to the government leader in both capitals of St. Martin, Sekou wrote that the “Court judgment is racist and will lead to gross human rights violation in the Dominican Republic (DR) against the affected citizens: theft of their property, destruction of homes, loss of jobs, small business ownerships and bank accounts with the life savings of families, denial of educational opportunities, and the perpetuation of a range of violence, including rape, abuse of children, the elderly and the sick, police brutality, military detention, and the mass murder that historically stems from such abhorrent laws—genocide.”

According to Sekou, the tribunal sentence has absolutely nothing to do with immigration and much more with ethnic cleansing. “The racist ruling will invariably affect DR citizens of St. Martin heritage that have been part of Dominican society, certainly since 1929, and thought to number at least 40,000 people,” wrote Sekou. The Court ruling has a retroactive feature from 1929.

Mostly DR citizens of Haitian origin are among those affected by the ruling, which, wrote Sekou, “is not acceptable to any civilized nation that abides by established norms of the international community and the principles and practices of humanity.”

Prime Minister Wescot-Williams and President Hanson “must condemn this infection of apartheid in the Caribbean,” wrote Sekou, and “take a leadership role in the solidarity call for immediate, practical, and just corrective measures to be taken in the Dominican Republic.”

Sekou wrote that objection to the “racist ruling” should also be made in regional and international fora

“where the adjusted autonomy” of 2010 and 2007 allows both St. Martin territories to do so. The Southern and Northern parts of St. Martin are territories of the Netherlands and France respectively. Wescot-Williams is the prime minister in the Dutch territory and Hanson is the president of the French territory. Sekou is an advocate for the Independence and eventual unification of St. Martin.

Considered one of the prolific Caribbean poets of his generation, Sekou said that “the designated channels of communication” that allow the governments in Philipsburg and Marigot “to request and if necessary to demand that the Netherlands and France denounce the racist ruling ... must also be promptly employed.” He noted that calls for the boycott of DR trade goods and tourism are already being sounded.

Sekou said this week that “the early, clear and strong statements to the DR president and government by the prime minister of St. Vincent and The Grenadines and protesting groups in Trinidad and Puerto Rico among other places are admirable. Their positions represent the best of a history of solidarity and victory over oppression among Caribbean peoples and support for oppressed peoples in the region and around the world.”

He also said that the support for the ruling among significant sectors of DR society, including Cardinal Nicolás de Jesús López Rodríguez, has not deterred or stopped the growing concerns, findings, and mounting protests by other government leaders; regional and international bodies such as CARICOM, OCHR, UNHCR, Amnesty, OECS, the Inter-American Commission on Human Rights; human rights groups such as Reconoci.do; and individuals inside and outside of the Dominican Republic. Former DR president Hipolito Mejia recently called the ruling “a shame.”

Concluding his letter to Prime Minister Wescot-Williams and President Hanson, Sekou quoted Dr. Ralph Gonsalves, Prime Minister of St. Vincent & The Grenadines in his letter to President Danilo Medina of the Dominican Republic -- against the September 13 decision: “The fig-leaf of sovereignty cannot be invoked when time-honoured and universal principles of citizenship and human decency are trampled upon.”

Black radio demise with producers buying blocks of time to air reggae, soca and calypso music. Some include Simon Templar and Prince Kalunda.

Prior to that Jeff Barnes helmed the news desk and also honed his skill as a deejay.

When the station relocated from Sunnyside, Queens to 333 Seventh Ave. in Manhattan, WWRL became an affiliate of Air America, a liberal talk radio network.

Station managers desperately tried to make the station viable by offering live coverage of basketball games with the New York Liberty of the WNBA. However, on Dec. 31, 2013, one of New York City’s landmark radio stations will depart from an 87-year tradition by signing off in English before ushering in the era of Spanish-language broadcasting at 1600 AM, WWRL.

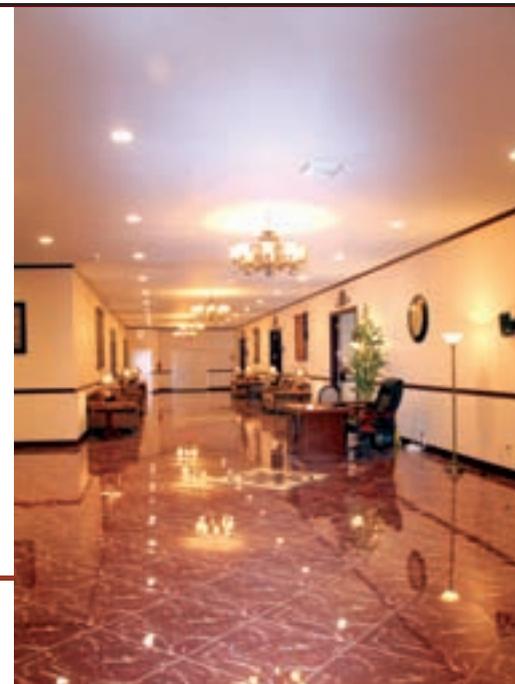

For the past 12 months, we have been servicing the community with dignity and compassion. We look forward to the future providing the same excellent service.

Memory & Identity in Black America

"Jim Crow Wisdom: Memory & Identity in Black America Since 1940" by Jonathan Scott Holloway c.2013, University of North Carolina Press $39.95 / $50.00 Canada 273 pages

By Terri Schlichenmeyer

You've always prided yourself on being a good storyteller.

You've always been able to craft a good tale – whether it was one of imagination, one to escape trouble, or a story with lesson added.

It's a talent you got from your parents, and they from theirs. In the new book "Jim Crow Wisdom" by Jonathan

BOOK REVIEW

Scott Holloway, you'll see how that storytelling prowess may have helped your family survive.

Throughout his life, Jonathan Scott Holloway heard stories.

One of the ones he remembers particularly was that which his father, an ex-military man, told Holloway on the way to school one fall day. It had something to do with fighting and how not to react. Holloway thought it was a strange thing then but, he says, "I discovered that there was more to this story than a father merely preparing his son for a world of inequality."

Many African Americans, Holloway claims, share stories of perseverance and strength through memoirs, stories, and anecdotes, and some of the most powerful tales are told in physical manifestations of museum or preserved buildings. Many of these stories serve as subtle (or not-so-subtle) warnings, lessons in getting along in a White world.

But, as he learned, stories can be edited or omitted entirely. There's a certain kind of unneeded "shame" in some facets of family history that may be hidden or forgotten. They're buried or, as Holloway says of his own family, a certain "branch of the family tree isn't even dead. It's simply gone."

Good or bad, this all serves as "the preservation of social status and authority," as well as being cautionary in nature for future generations. It helps in "establishing links, forged from common experience, to the larger black community" by sharing wisdom and lessons learned from the Jim Crow era and more recently. Still,

"The editing... continues" and that, says Holloway, is detrimental to the black community.

"... the silences in a family's past can serve their purposes," he believes, "... but they also come with the risk of too little memory, of not knowing the value of sacrifice that enabled a better future in the first place."

In a way – at least for the casual reader – "Jim Crow Wisdom" was written backwards.

Author Jonathan Scott Holloway writes, in the second half of his book, about his family: recollections of learning stories he'd never heard, and finally understanding the tales that were ingrained at his core. It's semi-biographical, lively, and because of the nature of what he writes, the latter half of this book underscores its title.

But first, we must get through the first half, which is very, very academic. Holloway is a professor at Yale, after all, and the beginning of the books shows it. It's not unreadable, but it belies the spiritedness that the second half possesses.

Keep that in mind when you're reading this book, be willing to read it second-half-first, and you may find it to be quite eye-opening. For you, "Jim Crow Wisdom" might spur you to share a few good stories.

Make realistic resolutions to lose weight in the new year

(StatePoint) Millions of Americans resolve to lose weight and commit to healthful eating at the beginning of each year, but many resolutions are notoriously broken. Why? Many registered dietitian nutritionists say that fad diets are partly to blame.

“It’s tempting to focus on losing weight fast, which can lead many to turn to dangerous fads and crash diets,” says registered dietitian nutritionist and Academy of Nutrition and Dietetics spokesperson, Jessica Crandall. “However, research shows that slow, healthy weight loss is more likely to last than dramatic weight changes.”

Crandall says that forgetting fad diets and getting back to the basics of moving more and eating smarter are your best bets for success in the New Year.

BE REALISTIC, BE SPECIFIC

“Planning to hit the gym for four hours every day or stick to a super restrictive fad diet is overwhelming for your body and mind,” says Crandall. “Instead, choose smaller, healthy changes you can stick to over the long term.

One large goal can seem overwhelming. Instead, build a plan that works for your unique nutritional needs and lifestyle. A registered dietitian nutritionist can help you develop a plan that’s right for you. Here are some challenging, reachable resolutions to consider:

- Fill half your plate with fruits and vegetables.
- Make at least half of the grains you eat whole grains.
- Get active! Fit in physical activity where you can in your day, whether taking a family walk after dinner or hitting the gym.
- Serve regular, balanced meals and snacks with a variety of nutrient-rich foods.

Also, make sure the goals you set are measurable, so that you can easily review and track your progress, as well as reward yourself. Allow time to achieve each smaller goal so you are not discouraged if you haven’t met them.

BUILD A SUPPORT NETWORK

Enlist family and friends to try new healthy recipes with you or to be your workout buddy. Having a support network can help you overcome midnight snacking urges and hit the gym in even the coldest of months.

“It’s important to be sure to track your progress towards your health goals, and give yourself encouragement and solutions along the way,” says Crandall. “To make things easier, it’s always a good idea to have a food and nutrition expert on your side!”

St. Lucia seeks media regulations

The St. Lucia government says it wants the media in St. Lucia to regulate itself, insisting that it does not want to be involved in the exercise.

“There are many FM stations, many television stations operating in St. Lucia. They are all competing for a very small market share and I think that has caused some of them to be very aggressive in their programming; to take some risks that try to be ahead of the pack and unfortunately that has happened in an environment that has not been regulated,” said Information and Broadcasting Minister Dr. James Fletcher.

He said the challenge now for the Kenny Anthony administration “is to try to put in place some sort of regime.”

The government has said the issue was still being discussed and that the Ministry of Information and Broadcasting has solicited comments, suggestions for improvement, and expression of concern on a proposed Draft Broadcasting Authority/ Services Bill.

2013,” Williams said, adding that the police would continue to work with communities and put more effort into community policing.

Meanwhile, the killings continued over the weekend after three men were gunned down in Diego Martin, West of here and Marvant, along the east-west corridor.

Police said that 36-year-old Robert “Ming” Awong was in the yard of his neighbor when gunmen in a vehicle shot at him. Two other people were also injured.

In the other incident, an unidentified man was shot and killed while he was standing on the road in Morvant on early Sunday morning. Police said another man who was standing nearby was also shot and injured.

Prime Minister Kamla Persad Bissessar says her coalition People’s Partnership government is committed to the fight against crime, as Trinidad and Tobago recorded yet three more murders, pushing the toll so far this year to 376.

Police said that 36-year-old Robert “Ming” Awong was in the yard of his neighbor when gunmen in a vehicle shot at him. Two other people were also injured.

I know the minister of National Security is doing the best that he can, but there is still much more that we need to do.”

“Some of the crimes are crimes of passion. That does not mean that it is something that is right. Those are more difficult to contain where it is a domestic situation, where crimes of passion are taking place,” she told reporters at her annual Christmas treat at Skinner Park, south of here on Sunday.

“Every crime is one crime too much and that remains number one priority in our list, to deal with crime in Trinidad and Tobago.”

New Yorkers give praise and thanks for Madiba

The voices of New Yorkers added to those of multitudes around the world during a service of thanksgiving for the life of former South African President Nelson Mandela who died Dec. 5 at age 95.

In song and speeches, many who yearned to praise the African who President Barack Obama described as a “liberator” had the opportunity on Dec. 11 at Riverside Church.

Inside the reputed cathedral, where the iconic freedom-fighter visited twice – first July 2, 1990 and again on his last visit here May 14, 2005 – hundreds filled the rafters for a thanksgiving service held in conjunction with the South African Consulate.

On a program that invited almost three dozen participants, everyone lavished adulations on the sole international leader to serve 27 years in prison and on release was voted commander-in-chief of the country that jailed him for treason.

“It was not a career move,” Rev. Al Sharpton said about Mandela’s back-breaking prison term at Robben Island, “There was no guarantee he would ever see the light of day.”

The preacher side of the community-activist turned MSNBC television host added: “Don’t lionize 27 years and don’t even have the courage to fight for minimum wage,” Sharpton warned.

Of Madiba, Sharpton said “he was at peace with himself.”

“They called him a red sympathizer,” he reminded the congregation.

But now “we are the ones battling, Madiba was always at peace.”

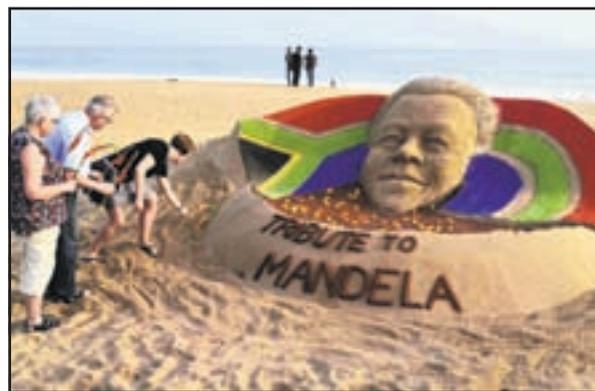

In requiem he added “you’ve walked the long walk to freedom – we are way behind you but at least we know the direction because you showed us the way.”

Sharpton’s acid admonition provided sobering reality to an evening filled with platitudes and reflections from former Mayor David N. Dinkins, Rev. Calvin O. Butts, Rev. James A. Forbes Jr. and Gina Belafonte, daughter of activist/singer/actor Harry Belafonte.

The senior pastor at the cathedral described Mandela as a prophetic conveyor who “God used to call attention to show that he is not pleased.”

Rev. Forbes surmised “all God’s children must eat at the table, they must have shelter” and for all he did and all he suffered “it was to get the attention of the entire world.”

A congregation of more than 2,000 held rapt attention listening to Rev. Forbes’ spiritual eulogy.

Forbes had campaigned for Mandela in 1990 and related how a number of his colleagues travelled to South Africa from the USA to dissuade voters from voting for the candidate to represent the African National Congress.

The Christian preachers he said told South Africans to ignore the ANC candidate and “to vote for Jesus.”

According to Rev. Forbes, he in turn had to undo their actions.

“I told them that I had spoken to the Lord and he told me if nominated he would not run and if elected he would not serve.”

The crowd cheered his technique.

“He told me that he already rules a huge kingdom.”

The senior minister of the cathedral who is temporarily serving in that position since retirement delivered pearls of wisdom and gems of knowledge which the crowd readily absorbed.

“His words should be posted on doors and remembered every day,” Belafonte said of the “comrade” and “moral leader of the world” she met at her father’s side.

“I was not born to fail,” 16-year-old poet Andromeda Small, a member of Dr. Glory’s Youth Theater at Riverside Church said. Her engaging recitation amplified the legacy Mandela gifted the world. With confidence and poetic grace she epitomized a future full of hope.

When the service ended, the bells of the Gothic Church tolled a sound echoed through Harlem and perhaps across the nation.

A special memorial tribute was also slated for the United Nations on Dec. 19.

‘American Promise’

By Tequila Minsky

On Feb 3, “American Promise” airs on TV, part of PBS’s Point of View-POV series. For 14 years, the documentary film follows two Brooklyn boys, from kindergarten at the elite Dalton School in Manhattan and on. (One of the subjects, Idris, is the filmmakers’ son.)

Garnering nationwide kudos and favorable reviews, most recently, the film is the core of Judith Ohikuare’s December 17 The Atlantic article “When Minority Students Attend Elite Private Schools.” (She tells us that she entered Chapin School in the 6th grade, the second black girl out of 60 students and had been prepared by going through a program called Prep for Pre, a non-profit organization that filters low-income minority students into New York independent schools.)

The premiere screenings of “American Promise” at the New York Film Festival this fall were to standing ovations.

Blues People at 50

By Amun

“Blues People: Negro Music in White America” by LeRoi Jones was published by the William Morrow Company in 1963, although Jones completed the book in 1961. “Blues People” is a seminal study of African American music and culture, and also the history of African people in America. This is a very important book, as important today as it was when it was published in 1963, fifty years ago. To this day “Blues People” is considered one of the most influential volumes of jazz criticism ever published.

This year 2013 the book and its author, LeRoi Jones, now Amiri Baraka, have been celebrating the 50th anniversary of the publication of “Blues People.” Baraka was a young man of 27 when he completed “Blues People.” He was just beginning his rise to recognition and fame. His book of poetry, “Preface to a Twenty Volume Suicide Note” was published in 1961 and his controversial and celebrated play, “Dutchman” opened at the Cherry Lane Theatre and received an Obie Award in 1964. In April 1965 Baraka and group of Black writers made a move to Harlem and opened the Black Art Repertory Theatre and School (BARTS). This marked the beginning of the Black Arts Movement, the cultural arm of the Black Power Movement.

Baraka tells the story of the seed being planted that spawned his writing of "Blues People." He and his long time friend and Howard University roommate, AB Spellman were feeling their new found "Hip-dom" and identification as "BeBoppers" having seen/heard Bird, Dizzy and Monk and even Brubeck at Oberlin College, when they were students at Howard University in DC. Their English professor, the renowned poet, Sterling Brown pulled them up one day, and invited them to his home. There he showed them his collection of Jazz and Blues Records. 45's were just making their appearance and most of the collection consisted of LPs and 78s, organized by performer and genre, chronologically. The collection was huge and went back to the early Blues recordings to the then present. Brown told his young students that they were looking at their history, the history of African people in America. Baraka says that it took him a decade to really understand, what Sterling Brown meant.

Of the many programs that took place in 2013 to celebrate "Blue People," I mention three. On October 3rd the Schomburg Center for Research in Black Cultural presented "The Blues People 50 Years Later," conversation with Amiri Baraka, Dr. Ingrid Monson and Dr. John Szwed. On October 14th The Center of Jazz Studies at Columbia University presented "Amiri Baraka's Blues People at Fifty," a conversation with Professors William J. Harris, Robert G. O'Meally and John Szwed.

On Nov. 5, New Jersey Performing Arts Center (NJ PAC) as part of the "James Moody Democracy of Jazz Festival," presented, "A Celebration of Amiri Baraka's Blues People at 50," "Keep Your Razor Sharp," a musical composition by Craig Harris featuring Craig Harris & Nation of Imagination at the Newark Museum.

Amiri Baraka is arguably the finest living poet in America and perhaps the world. He is a word-smith extraordinaire as well as a fine novelist, essayist and dramatist. Only two of his many works remain in print today, "Blues People" and "Dutchman & The Slave." Baraka is not being published in spite of the fact that he remains prolific and is currently working on a biography of Max Roach and one on Pat

Patrick, the great saxophonist with the SunRa Arkestras and the father of Deval Patrick, governor of Massachusetts.

When I referenced the library for a copy of "Blues People" there was not a single copy in the whole New York Library System that could be charged out. The Brooklyn Public Library does not even own a copy.

The Queens and New York Library do have reference copies available, but only scholars and researcher make use of those copies. The youth with their hungry minds are virtually barred from access to this valuable and essential book of wisdom and critical analysis of jazz and the source of its birth.

East Side as kindergarteners. They are part of Dalton's diversity program and are among the few students of color there.

The viewer travels through time with them from school start through high school. And, especially in middle school we experience their painful academic struggles and the frustration of parents Brewster and Stephenson and the Summers. We follow the two at Dalton and later, with Seun at the public high school Benjamin Banneker Academy in Brooklyn, where he transfers.

There are plenty of laughs, quiet gasps, and moments near tears in this 215-minute epic film, an emotional roller coaster of the boys' lives. After seeing the film, some of the poignant dialogue lives in the viewer's mind.

Long-term observational films like Aped's 7-Up series, "Hoop Dreams" and the work of African-American filmmaker Marlon Riggs had impact on filmmakers Brewster and Stephenson who wore the many hats of camera shooters, directors and parents.

Taking its own course through the years, the project shifted for the filmmakers from looking at the Dalton diversity experiment to focusing on the African American male experience and what has been described as the "achievement gap."

The documentary considers race, class, and opportunity as the boys come of age, authentically revealed through intimate and vulnerable exchanges before the camera, a direct cinema approach to filmmaking.

Since the premieres and preview, there have also been screenings of this film with parent groups around the country. It has opened up dialogue about young black male success.

Additionally, filmmaker Brewster, who is also a psychiatrist and filmmaker/wife Stephenson and Hilary Beard have written the book "Promises Kept," of the lessons learned from their "American Promise" project. Subtitled "Raising Black Boys to Succeed in School and in Life", the book's launch will coincide with the airing of the PBS documentary.

Where "American Promise" raises questions, "Promises Kept" offers insights that the authors derived from their own experiences with the latest research on closing the black male achievement gap.

Brewster's film credits include the 1996 feature film "The Keeper." Stephenson's Panamanian and Haitian heritage has fueled her passion to tackle stories on communities of color.

Father, son bond during nostalgic road trip

“Nebraska”
Excellent (4 stars)
Rated R for profanity
Running time:
115 minutes
Distributor:
Paramount Pictures

By Kam Williams

77-year-old Woody Grant (Bruce Dern) is an addled alcoholic whose brain is so bent out of shape that he’s convinced he’s struck it rich after getting one of those mass-produced letters in the mail announcing that you’ve just won a million dollars in a magazine sweepstakes. Nevertheless, he soon sets out on foot by himself from Billings, Montana to collect his grand prize in Omaha, Nebraska.

Once it’s clear that the cantankerous curmudgeon can’t be talked out of that foolhardy endeavor, son David (Will Forte) opts to drive his dad there. This doesn’t sit well with Woody’s acid-tongued wife, Kate (June Squibb), who’s too well-grounded in reality to indulge the old coot’s nonsense.

However, as futile as the quest might sound, the pair’s ensuing sojourn across four states does prove rather fruitful. After all, not only does it afford father and son a chance to spend some quality time together, but they also get to catch up with lots of long-lost friends and relatives they visit along the way.

Eventually, Kate and elder son, Ross (Bob Odenkirk), join them en route, grudgingly making the long jaunt a family affair. It’s understandably hard for them to be enthusiastic about an outing inspired by a fraudulent marketing scheme.

A scene from “Nebraska.”

Still, sometimes, getting there is all the fun, as is the case with Nebraska, a nostalgic road trip unfolding against the barren backdrop of the heartland’s crumbling infrastructure. The film was directed by two-time Oscar-winner Alexander Payne (for writing Sideways and The Descendants) whose decision to shoot the picture in black-and-white was nothing short of a stroke of genius.

For the lack of color only serves to further emphasize the absence of hope in a rural region left devastated by the failure of its factory, farm and small town life. It’s no wonder, then, that some of the pour souls the Grants encounter might seize on Woody’s pipe dream as a way of alleviating their own misery.

Featuring a career performance by Bruce Dern destined to be remembered during awards season, Nebraska is a lighthearted character study which, ironically, offers a stone, cold sober look at the downsizing of the Midwest’s American Dream.

PERFORMING ARTS: Gotham Chamber Opera presents Marc-Antoine Charpentier's La descente d'Orphée aux enfers, a co-production with Trinity Church, from at St. Paul's Chapel, Broadway and Fulton, NYC. Charpentier's 1686 opera retells the story of Orpheus who, upon learning of Eurydice's sudden death, descends to Hades in order to convince Pluto to allow her to return with him to earth. This classic story of selfless love and the power of music to overcome death will be staged by Andrew Eggert and presented in historic St. Paul's Chapel. Performances: Wednesday, January 1 and Friday, January 3 at 7pm; Sunday, January 5 at 5pm. Tickets are $15-$125 and are available at www.ticketcentral.com or (212) 279-4200. For more information visit www.gothamchamberopera.org.

Off-spinners in trouble

By Azad Ali

West Indies off-spinner Shane Shillingford has been suspended by the International Cricket Council (ICC) after his bowling action was found illegal.

His team-mate Marlon Samuels, a part-time off-spinner, has been banned from bowling quicker deliveries in international cricket.

Nassau's Winter Season

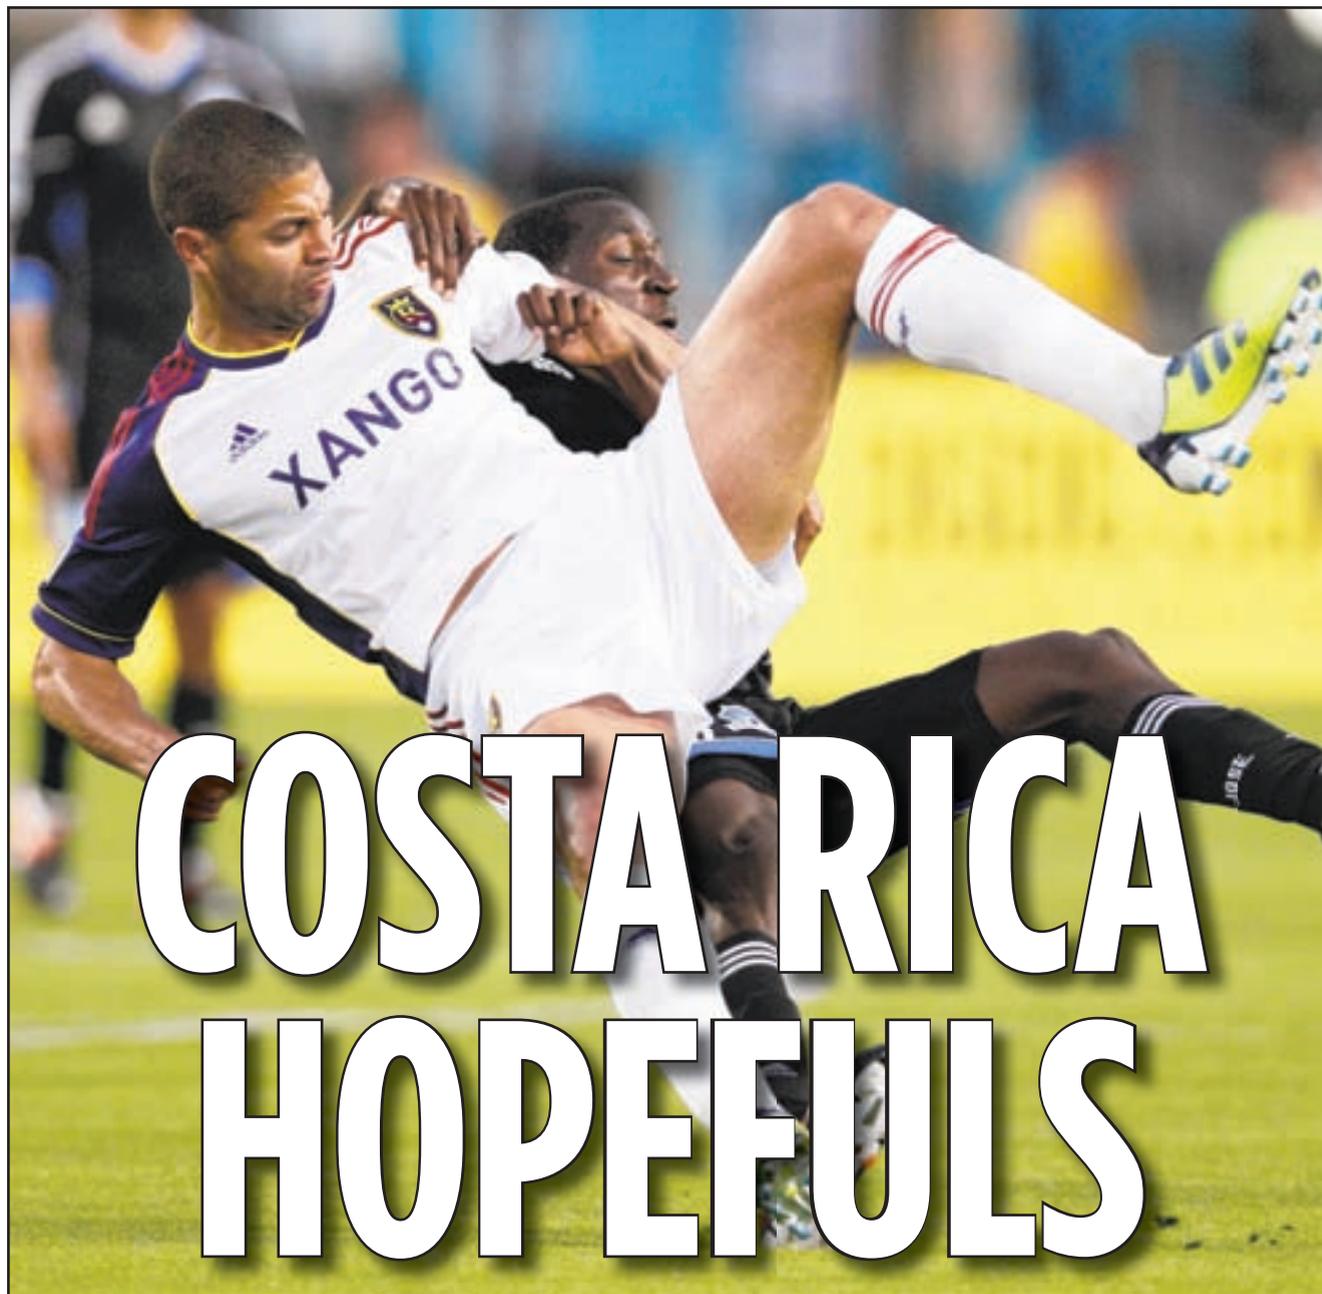

By Robert Elkin

Over past years, one of the top distance runners to come out of Westbury High School and the entire Long Island was Owen Skeete, who dominated the long distance events. Skeete had a unique style of running – to go out fast, open a huge lead, hopefully not 'die' and hold on or easily get the victory. He holds every distance record at Westbury.

Is there anyone in Section Eight to equal or pass his style of running? Just ask his coach Donald Ross or any other Westbury athlete!

Take current student athlete senior Jason Aparicio, for example. "I saw him

Hopes to make Second Round in World Cup

By Patrick Horne

Current Central America champion Costa Rica probably has the best chance among the CONCACAF nations of advancing to the second round in next summer FIFA World Cup in Brazil. The Costa Ricans, which finished second to the U.

S. in qualifying (Honduras was third and Mexico won the fourth-place berth) qualifying, is in Group D against Uruguay, Italy and England.

The Costa Ricans are making their fourth World Cup appearance; it played in 1990, 2002 and 2006 and won three of the 10 games and loss six, with one draw. Although this is not an impressive record, the present Costa Rican team is well coached and has a very balanced team that plays well together.

Led by scoring leader Alvaro Saborio

Preparing for CONCACAF 2014

of Real Salt Lake in MLS, the Ticos kick (July 14) off against a very familiar foe in Uruguay. Costa Rica is very familiar the Uruguayans and even though it has never defeated Uruguay, it can well have a positive result in its most important game of the tournament.

Italy, Costa Rica's second game in the first round (July 20), is favored to win the group and advance to the second round. Unlike England, Italy is an exceptional tournament team; it has won four World Cups and knows how to find way to win; the slow-starting Italians grow as the tournament develops, so Costa Rica will have to play a very tight game with few mistakes to get a good result.

England, the Ticos' third and final opponent (July 24) in the first round, are a very poor tournament team, which is why it has only one World Cup title (1966) to its credit and no European Championship titles. Despite having one for the best league in the world, there are very few players who can make an impact at the international level, least of all at the World Cup; Wayne Rooney of Manchester United (English Premier League) is the only player that comes to mind that could possibly win a game for England at this advanced level.

If Costa Rica, employs sound strategy that includes keeping the ball for long periods, which the Ticos can do, it will have a good chance for a good result. Cost Rican needs only to take a page out of Chile's playbook: the Chileans played a good possession game and beat England, 2-0, in front of a full house of its supporters at Wembley Stadium in London about three weeks ago.

JOHNSON TRADED

The Seattle Sounders (MLS) announced on Tuesday that it's leading scorer the past two seasons, Eddie Johnson, has been traded to D C United. Johnson, ranked second all-time on the scoring chart for the Sounders, scored 23 goals the past two regular seasons. "Eddie was a valuable part of our team the last two seasons," said Owner and General Manager Adrian Hanauer. "Eddie is a tremendous player who gave us some wonderful moments. This was an opportunity for us to receive allocation money that can strengthen our club in many areas. We wish him the best in D.C."

The 29-year-old Johnson played 61 times for the U.S. and scored 19 goals; he played in MLS with FC Dallas/Dallas Burn (2001-2005) and the Kansas City Wizards (2006-2007)...Johnson scored two goals in three 2013 CONCACAF Gold Cup appearances, helping the U.S. to its fifth title.

over the summer," Aparicio said, after he watched some of the girls compete in the Friendship Games at Nassau Community College. "He (Skeete) told me to work hard, to work on form, bring the knees up when tired, believe in your self, and to must win."

Skeete is now on the track team at Indiana University, where he is training hard for the indoor or winter season.

Jason's father Hugo Murillo, a former soccer player in El Salvador, South America, started his son off because he had over weight problems, Murillo came to New York at the age of 22. Track helped Aparicio in reducing his weight.

His favorite events are the 200-meter-dash and 400-meter-run. He uses the latter event mainly for endurance. In these races, Aparicio does not follow the style of running that Skeete did. Instead, he tries to follow in the footsteps of another former Westbury athlete Darnell Mickens, who was a State champion while at Westbury in 2010. And Micken's father does come from the Caribbean.

Now Aparicio is trying to lowering his times in the events that Coach Ross enters him into. He is trying to get a track scholarship to a college down south.

The student athlete says that the major difference in running in New York and in El Salvador is that down south the weather is hot. Here in New York it is not as hot.

However, soccer is the main sport in El Salvador. And from time to time, he visits El Salvador.

"I used to play soccer when I was little," the athlete recently said. "When I was in the fourth and fifth grades I played soccer. Then I broke my ankle, and stopped soccer... and (eventually) I stopped the triple jump."

Meanwhile, the coaches at Westbury High School entered many runners in various sections of the 600-meter-run. Based on time, Westbury's Richard Taylor won the Open 600 in a time of 1:30.40. Teammate Josh Jean also took a section of the same event.

Jean's father Joseph Jean, a native of Haiti, was a versatile athlete, and even was a tennis player in Haiti.

Action in the 22nd Friendship Games resume on Friday Jan. 10 with the boys action starting at 5:00 p.m. Finals are on Jan. 20 starting at 9:00 a.m. with boys and girls competition. Shot put, high jump and pole vault, are contested at Farmingdale High School on Jan. 8. Various awards will be presented on the day of the finals.

The Friendship Games are organized by Malverne High School and Lakeview Youth Federation, Inc.

Spinner's woes

Shillingford and Samuels underwent biomechanical analysis in Perth last month before the start of the series against New Zealand after they were reported for suspect action.

An ICC statement said that an independent biomechanical analysis had revealed that for both Shillingford's standard off-break delivery and his doosra, the amount of elbow extension in his bowling action exceeded the 15 degrees' level of tolerance permitted under the ICC regulations.

Shillingford will remain suspended until he submits a fresh analysis that proves his action has been corrected.

The Dominican bowler had been suspended from bowling in international cricket in December 2010, a month after being reported for a suspect bowling action on West Indies' tour of Sri Lanka.

He underwent remedial action on his bowling and was cleared by the ICC in June 2011.

The analysis on Samuels' action revealed that the spinner's standard off-break delivery was legal but the quicker delivery exceeded the prescribed levels of tolerance.

If Samuels is reported for a suspect action in the next two years, the ICC will take note of it as a second report and the player will have to undergo a biomechanical analysis.

BIG FINISH 2013

Appoint Denesh Ramdin as West Indies captain

Eyes on Cricket

By George H. Whyte

West Indies wicketkeeper/batsman Denesh Ramdin has the capabilities of leading the West Indies team after being vice captain for the longest haul and captaining the Trinidad and Tobago team on numerous occasions. These opportunities have given him the experience needed to take up such a position.

Ramdin has been around West Indies cricket long enough to understand what areas of major concern have to be addressed. This is the time for Ramdin to take over the West Indies captaincy in Tests. The proper rebuilding of the West Indies team can only come about by a change of leadership. At least this should be one of the steps.

WEST INDIES MUST STRENGTHEN ITS

ODI SQUAD

West Indies One-Day International squad needs to be strengthened and the inclusion of Kevon Cooper, the young allrounder from Trinidad & Tobago, should be certain. Cooper is not only a Twenty20 player but he is undoubtedly a fine cricketer. As a prolific all-rounder his talents must not be utilized only by playing in the Indian Premier League (IPL) but he must be involved in the West Indies One-Day International team.

Ashley Nurse, Jonathan Carter and wicketkeeper Shane Dowrich all from Barbados are superb talented players and should be considered. Carter, the all-rounder, already was highly looked at when he played for Barbados in the last ODI regional competition.

West Indies' Denesh Ramdin bats during the fourth day of the second cricket test match between Bangladesh and West Indies in Khulna, Bangladesh, Saturday, Nov. 24, 2012.

DWAYNE BRAVO MUST PERFORM WITH BAT

West Indies One-Day

international captain Dwayne Bravo must do a better job with the bat. Bravo has not been scoring runs for the West Indies although he is an important player in this type of cricket. For him to be constantly failing as a batsman and also as captain does not look good for him. Captains must lead by example. Kieran Powell must wait for Lendl Simmons in the opening position of the ODI'S. Simmons is a much better One-Day opener and it is just fitting to have him start the innings.

Dinner time.

A perfect moment to talk about alcohol.

An alarming number of pre-teens are drinking alcohol — which makes it urgent to find every opportunity to talk to your kids about the dangers of underage drinking. For tips on how — and when — to begin the conversation, visit:

ARIES: Mar 21/Apr 20
Now may be the time to try something new, Aries. You are not one to shy away from anything, but right now you're a bit apprehensive about things. Take a leap of faith.

TAURUS: Apr 21/May 21
Taurus, many people look to you as a leader, and they are wise to do so. You are especially trustworthy, and you will be asked to solve a few problems this week.

GEMINI: May 22/Jun 21
Gemini, there won't be much time to enjoy recreational activities this week, so you may have to find a new way to let loose. Rest assured there will be more time for fun down the road.

CANCER: Jun 22/Jul 22
Cancer, a new opportunity comes your way but you're not quite sure if you're ready for such drastic changes. Take your time before making a final decision.

LEO: Jul 23/Aug 23
Leo, no matter how hard you try, some people just can't see things from your point of view. Don't take this personally, as everyone is entitled to their own opinions.

VIRGO: Aug 24/Sept 22
Virgo, sometimes it seems like you have all of the answers, while at other times, you might not know how to approach a situation. Take some time to analyze your approach.

LIBRA: Sept 23/Oct 23
Feeling homesick, Libra? If so, make some post-holiday plans to visit with friends or family you didn't get a chance to see during the holidays. Enjoy this time spent with loved ones.

SCORPIO: Oct 24/Nov 22
Scorpio, you like to stay busy. But you sometimes feel overwhelmed with all that you have to do. Stop biting off more than you can chew and take things one task at a time.

SAGITTARIUS: Nov 23/Dec 21
Sagittarius, now is a good time to make resolutions and reconnect with distant friends. It is good to rekindle relationships and commit to spending more time with friends and family.

CAPRICORN: Dec 22/Jan 20
After time away for the holidays, getting back into a routine can be challenging, Capricorn. But you like to stick to a schedule, and getting back on track is the way to do it.

AQUARIUS: Jan 21/Feb 18
Aquarius, although you have many friends, you recently have only spent time with a select few. This week is a great time to reach out to those friends you haven't seen in awhile.

PISCES: Feb 19/Mar 20
Your competitive juices will be flowing this week, Pisces. Enjoy the competitive atmosphere but don't take things too far.

DeBlasio Warns Consumers About Classified Ads

Toll numbers may be a direct line to trouble. Classified ads are intended to help people by facilitating communication and advertising available services; however, some of the hotlines & service numbers in classifieds actually hurt the people who rely on them by cheating them of their hard-earned dollars. "Most newspapers print a disclaimer in their classified ad section to warn readers about numbers that are a direct line to trouble. Any number starting with 900, 540, 595 or 871 charges a fee beyond a local call. In some instances, ads initially advertise calls to a local number, but then direct callers to a second number starting with one of the paid exchanges. "Consumers must also question the legitimacy of vague classifieds because they too could be a scam. Before responding to an ad, consumers should verify the source of all information & always be wary about sending money or signing a contract with an unknown party."
